M. J. WHITNEY Silver is actually grateful she was housesitting for her friend in Carmel despite losing almost every personal possession in a fire that broke out early Sunday morning.

If she hadn't been there at 4:28 a.m., Aug. 30, when a loose gas line connection to a floor furnace started a fire at the unoccupied duplex at Junipero Street and Lorca Lane, Silver is convinced Kate, her 82-year-old deaf neighbor, would not be alive today.

Early Sunday morning, Silver said she woke up and thought she saw reflections of a fire in her front window, which in retrospect is impossible.

"I'm very spiritual," said Silver. "It was a warning."

The next thing she knew she heard the crackling of fire, saw smoke and within seconds watched as the fire leaped onto the fence that separates the two houses.

Two times she dialed 911. Both times she couldn't get through. "I called the operator," she remembers. "I was told I had to call 911 direct. I slammed the phone down, grabbed my cat, Tuli, my purse, and ran into the street in my night shirt."

Just as she was leaving the burning apartment, two Carmel police cars arrived. Silver immediately told the officers Kate was inside her house and they would have to kick down the door to get her out, which they did.

"The police told me they would never have known Kate was in the house — But for the grace of God, I acted as quickly as I did," said Silver.

Strange interlude

"God works in strange ways," said Silver, who is relocating on the Monterey Peninsula from San Diego. She's here to study at the Monterey Institute of International Studies (MIIS) in a master's program for teaching English to speakers of other languages.

McFarland nabbed in Monaco

By JOHN DETRO

CHARGED WITH bilking five banks out of more than $12 million, jaunty car collector Craig McFarland of Pebble Beach has been arrested in Monaco, the FBI announced Wednesday.

A bulletin detailing McFarland's apprehension "by the Police Judiciaire of Monaco" was issued by Jim Freeman, special agent in charge at the FBI's San Francisco office.

HAVING FOUND "no federal violations" when it followed up on allegations of extensive document shredding at Congressman Sam Farr's former State Assembly district offices, the FBI has determined not to open an official investigation.

The decision was revealed Tuesday via a statement given to The Pine Cone by Rick Smith, FBI media representative in San Francisco.

"Regarding those allegations made against Congressman Sam Farr's office that were reported the week of Aug. 23," Smith said over the telephone, "the FBI has determined that no federal violations exist. Therefore, the FBI will not open an investigation."

Asked for possible details, Smith replied: "Let the statement suffice. It stands by itself."

IN A year when public confidence in elected office holders has dropped to an all-time low, the politics of the state and region appears in transition.

In this context of change, there is the remarkable showing of Republican Bruce McPherson — the highest vote-getter Tuesday, Aug. 31 in the at-large primary for the 27th State Assembly District.

By all appearances, he brought with him the advantages of both name-recognition and a political-neophyte status.

A notice to our readers

NO DOUBT readers have noticed something different about this week's Carmel Pine Cone. And rightly so.

The Carmel Pine Cone has been significantly redesigned and, for the first time in more than 50 years, the newspaper has introduced a new masthead. In addition, The Pine Cone now features new headline and type styles.

Also, effective with this issue, The Pine Cone has introduced its first-ever sports section. Combining timely features with columns by students from Carmel High and Robert Louis Stevenson (to debut next week), the sports section leads off our newly designed second section.

Yet another new feature this week is an editorial page cartoon by Paul Conrad, three-time Pulitzer Prize winner whose work with the Los Angeles Times is well known.

In our 78th year, we have made some significant changes that we feel are for the better. We would, however, like to hear what you think. Please don't hesitate to give our general manager, Karen Carlson, or me a call at 624-0162.

'They had no friends or family... no place to go'

Carmel's Dorothy Steiner, Red Cross volunteer, back home after 3-week stint with flood victims

BY MITCH ARNESEN

THE FLOODING waters of the Mississippi River are receding. But Red Cross volunteer and Carmel resident Dorothy Steiner still holds vivid memories of her three-week assignment as a mass-care worker in Quincy, Ill.

Responsible for organizing thousands of hot meals a day, and getting those orders to the trucks for deliveries, Steiner said she was kept on her toes "all day and every day."

Throw in the heat and humidity of a Midwest summer, and it's easy to understand how "three weeks of that kind of work wiped me out!" Steiner recalls. "I never want to see another Gatorade or can of water!"

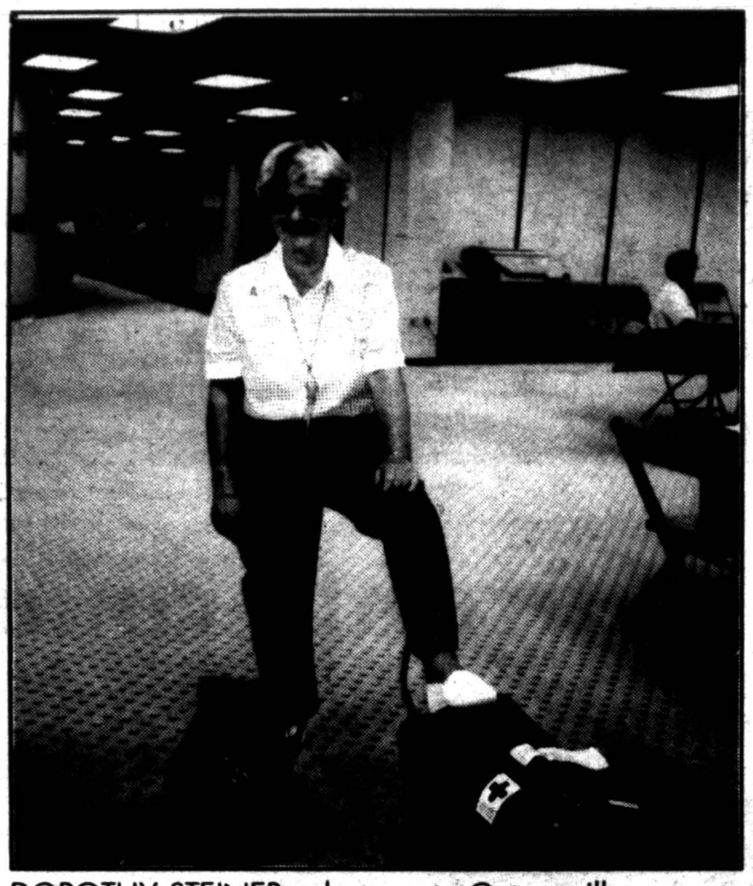
She remembers not wanting to see the semi-truck pull up to her warehouse with 750 cases of towels to unload. That morning, only she and another female volunteer were on duty. Two or three trips with a small dolly, eight boxes at a time, convinced her to radio for help, which came soon enough.

Most other times, however, she was on the other end, giving help to people who really needed it, but who were reluctant to accept a handout.

"These were very self-reliant people," Steiner said. "They never wanted to take anything for free! If you stopped and offered someone a cup of coffee, they offered to pay for it."

Many of the people who were flooded out had friends and relatives to stay with, or they had enough money and went to a motel, said Steiner.

"People really helped each other," she said. "The townspeople helped us too, making sandwiches and loading trucks."



DOROTHY STEINER volunteers in Quincy, Ill.

Contrasting experience

The helpful attitude of the locals contrasted sharply with her experience in Florida after Hurricane Andrew hit last year. There, relief workers had to deal with armed guards and looting. And her experience in helping people in Watsonville after the Loma Prieta earthquake was quite different, also.

"More people needed shelters," said Steiner. "They had no friends or family, no place to go."

Still, the flooding of the Mississippi River has caused much damage, and more work and help is needed to clean things up. Whole towns have been flooded out, displacing thousands of families. In some areas, many people feel it's best not to rebuild houses and levies. They'd rather let Mother Nature reclaim the land as wetlands, said Steiner.

Even in places where the water has receded, people are concerned about the coming winter and a possible early freeze. The saturated ground may cause foundations to give way and roads to buckle, she noted.

All this points to a continued need of the Red Cross and its many volunteers. Steiner, a real estate agent in her regular life, is open to the possibility of being sent to Florida to help hurricane victims on the east coast.

"The Red Cross is a great organization," said Steiner. "I encourage people to volunteer. There's so much we all can do to help others."

Her three weeks of service in Quincy, Ill. was hard and tedious, but it was difficult to leave without tears in her eyes.

"The saddest time was when I had to call all my contacts and tell them I was leaving," said Steiner. "I met a lot of very sweet and wonderful people."

Kohn, Russo off to St. Louis

BOB KOHN, a member of Carmel's Forest and Beach Commission, and Carmel resident Evey Russo, are on a three-week assignment in St. Louis, Mo. in response to the flooding in the Midwest.

Kohn served as a Red Cross volunteer in the aftermath of Hurricane Iniki in Hawaii for three weeks and will be serving as a Damage Assessment Technician on his current assignment.

Russo is a Red Cross certified by-lingual in English and Spanish, CPR and First Aid instructor. She will be working in Missouri as a Mass Care Technician.

Kay Grant of Cachagua has returned early from the Midwest where she served as a Mass Care Technician since Aug. 9. While working, she fell and sustained some minor injuries.

It is estimated the cost of rescue and recovery operations in the Midwest will be in excess of $20 million. Donations of cash are urgently needed. For further information, call 800-842-2200 or send a check marked "For National Disaster Relief Fund" to your local Red Cross chapter or to the American Red Cross, P. O. Craig McFarland's run from law ends in Monaco

Wednesday's bulletin from Freeman said McFarland, 54, was taken in Monaco on Aug. 31. The suspect would be brought before a magistrate in Monaco, it was stated, "and could be held in custody there pending the completion of the extradition process."

According to the bulletin, the arrest followed "a lengthy fugitive investigation to locate McFarland in the United States, Mexico and Europe."

At the time of his arrest, the FBI said, "McFarland denied his identity and produced false identification."

Fingerprints compared

However, the FBI continued, "when his fingerprints were compared to those on record previously provided to the Police Judiciare in Monaco, he admitted his identity. Investigation into this aspect of the matter is continuing."

The FBI scheduled a Wednesday afternoon press conference at Carmel Police Department (see story below).

McFarland disappeared from family and creditors in the springtime of 1992, the FBI said. An arrest warrant was issued out of San Jose on Dec. 18, 1992, charging him with multiple violations of U.S. banking laws.

In an affidavit filed to support an amended complaint of Aug. 23, 1993, the FBI said, "it is alleged that between 1989 and 1992, over $12 million was taken by McFarland from five victim banks.

"Investigation has revealed that nearly $2 million was funneled into accounts at offshore banks in Bermuda, the Channel Islands (near Great Britain) and Switzerland."

Possible fine noted

The alleged violations amounted to 16 counts against McFarland — 15 of making false statements to a federally insured financial institution and one count of bank fraud. "Each count charged under these laws," the FBI bulletin noted Wednesday, "carries a possible fine of $1 million and/or 30 years imprisonment."

The FBI said in April of this year: "The scheme employed by McFarland was centered around the submission of personally prepared financial statements which he provided to the victim banks and in which he selectively excluded certain liabilities. The banks relied upon this false information and provided the lost funds to McFarland in response to his applications."

Wednesday's FBI bulletin said the arrest "was made by means of a 'provisional warrant' — an international legal instrument supplied to the government of Monaco by way of the U.S. Department of Justice and the U.S. Department of State."

McFarland was known locally as a property developer, stock investor and collector of classic cars.

BILL SMITH (left), supervisory agent for the FBI's San Jose office, was accompanied by FBI man George Mozingo during Wednesday afternoon's press conference at Carmel Police Department. As TV cameras whirred and questions flew from several sides, Smith gave details on the arrest in Monaco of fugitive Craig McFarland from Pebble Beach. McFarland was charged with bilking banks out of $12 million.

McFarland's capture 'lifts cloud' hanging over Carmel

By JOHN DETRO

MAYOR KEN White was at Carmel Police Department Wednesday afternoon when the FBI held a press conference to discuss the arrest in Monaco of Craig McFarland, the fugitive car collector and property developer from Pebble Beach. (See story above.)

McFarland disappeared in the springtime of 1992. An arrest warrant and support documents accused him of cheating five banks out of more than $12 million.

"There has been a cloud over this community," White said. "Now the cloud has been lifted. I think people will begin getting answers to the questions they have been asking about the matter."

The main voice and fielder of questions was Bill Smith, supervisory special agent for the FBI's San Jose office. Smith identified the two agents with him — George Mozingo and Manuel Alvarez — as men who also had put in countless hours hunting McFarland.

"This case was fast-breaking," Smith said. "Over the past several days, we tracked (McFarland) through several countries."

And as TV crews pressed forward: "We have pursued leads in eight different foreign countries. No, we did not go there ourselves. The FBI has agents attached to embassies — and we have a representative in Monaco right now."

Photo distributed

Though the local suspect's apprehension had been covered in detail by a bulletin from the San Francisco FBI office earlier Wednesday, Smith was able to provide a passport photo of McFarland — "the latest one we have."

Other points that were made during the outdoor session on the department's front steps:

- The FBI expects no problems with extradition. The process should take six weeks, according to Mozingo.
- McFarland was dining in a restaurant when arrested, Smith said. "He was not alone. His companion was not identified."
- McFarland had a "false passport in his possession" when arrested.
- In April, the FBI said McFarland had been traveling with "a girlfriend — Catherine Jean Rorie, also known as C.J. Rorie." What about her? "We are still investigating C.J. Rorie," Smith said.

FBI won't investigate Farr

FBI agent Steve Cook that the bureau planned a "preliminary inquiry" into the allegations. Cook then referred all questions to Smith, who called the allegations "vague" and said the FBI would determine if an investigation was warranted.

Carmel source

The situation surfaced Wednesday morning when a Carmel man, willing to be identified only as "an education activist," said he contacted the FBI after a former 27th Assembly District staff member told him the shredding occurred under orders from Donna Blitzer. Blitzer was Assemblyman Farr's chief of staff, and today serves Congressman Farr in the same capacity.

The Carmel man charged in an interview that a one-time partner had bilked his wife and daughter out of "more than $4 million" in Napa Valley winery interests. The man took piles of documents to Assemblyman Farr's staff, hoping that the State Attorney General might get involved.

CONGRESSMAN SAM FARR

"With Sam Farr in Washington," the man said last week, "I wanted to know what would happen to my case. I spoke with the (ex-staffer). In turn, the FBI got hold of her."

The former staff member said during a separate interview that "boxes and boxes of case work were shredded at the county shredder in Salinas...I was surprised by the orders to shred. The orders were followed."

Blitzer last week said: "We didn't shred anything, but we did remove old files. Names were torn off (of cases) to protect people's confidentiality. Realize that we had 12 years' worth of files. These were recycled through county recycling."

Farr's comment: "Anything that was done amounted to standard operating procedure with confidential files. When offices are closed, the files are closed."

A combination?

Told about the FBI's statement on Tuesday and asked for some response, Blitzer said: "I would simply emphasize that it was all business as usual. No shredding occurred. Maybe there was a combination — a former employee who perhaps was disgruntled, and a constituent who then acted on misinformation."

Telephone calls to the ex-staffer's home did not draw an answer on Tuesday afternoon.

Blitzer said a meeting had been arranged between Farr and the Carmel man who still requested anonymity.

"We'll see what we can do for him," she said.

Helicopters get the attention of Valley residents

CARMEL VALLEY residents reported aircraft flying in the area starting late Friday night, Aug. 27.

George Grimes, spokesman for the U.S. Special Operations Command based at MacDill Air Force Base near Tampa, Fla., said military helicopters were in the area throughout the weekend as part of a widespread "joint mobility training exercise" by the command.

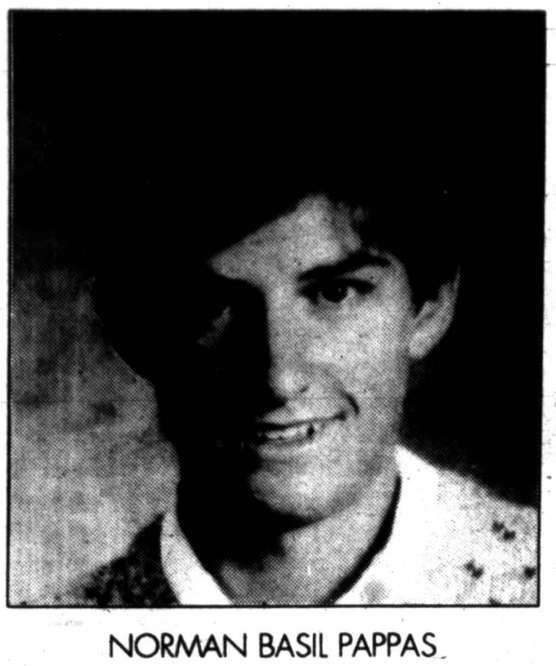
Formed in April 1987, the command includes elements of all the armed forces and specializes in clandestine, commando-style military operations.

Grimes said the exercises are geographically widespread with units of the command operating in Utah, Texas, Louisiana and New Mexico in addition to California for joint airborne, air assault and Army ranger training.

Most of the flight patterns in Carmel Valley were low-level, east to west, following the Carmel River.

Maneuvers began Aug. 2 and ended Aug. 31.

Child Quest network joins hunt for missing Carmel resident



NORMAN BASIL PAPPAS

CHILD QUEST International has joined in the search for Norman Basil Pappas, 20-year-old resident of the greater Carmel area who has been listed as missing since late July, Carmel Police Department said Wednesday.

Despite the added help, Detective Sgt. Warren (Pete) Poitras said, the man has not been located.

"Yes," said Poitras, "that network took the case. It distributes missing person brochures all over the place."

Pappas' mother dropped him off at the Naval Postgraduate School, where he had a parttime job, on July 26. That was the last time she saw him.

"A friend observed him in the area of the Monterey bus station at 11 a.m. the same day," Poitras said, "but did not speak with him. Basil hasn't been heard from since."

Originally, it was thought that he may have traveled to San Francisco. Acting on information supplied by his mother about where else Pappas might have gone, Carmel Police Department has covered South Lake Tahoe and Joshua Tree National Park with bulletins.

Thievery

In other police matters, two women have been victimized by thieves who struck at separate addresses in the area of Fifth and Mission.

• Poitras said 40 items of jewelry valued at a total of $8,546 were reported stolen by Rebecca Turnbow. She told officers the theft occurred some time between Aug. 5 and Aug. 27.

"It is not certain when the items were taken," Poitras said. "There's reason to suspect that entry had been gained. The investigation is continuing."

• According to Poitras, 22-year-old April Garren lost a $1,000 designer purse when she left it for a moment at the foot of a staircase in her apartment building.

"When she came back," the detective said, "the item was missing. "We have a general description of a possible suspect who'll be sought for questioning."

Hatton Canyon funds are transferable, says state official

■ Will earmarked $41 million go to other county transportation-improvement projects?

BY PAUL WOLF

GIVING ADVOCATES of widening Highway 1 cause for optimism, a key state official says the $41 million earmarked for the Hatton Canyon freeway may be applied to other county transportation projects.

The question is, What will the California Transportation Commission (CTC) decide on Sept. 8? That is the day when representatives from the Transportation Agency for Monterey County (TAMC) will request that the money earmarked for the freeway go to the widening.

And another question looms: Can the leftover money from the cheaper project go to other transportation needs?

"If the alternative to the freeway proves acceptable, and if there is a list of other acceptable projects in the county, then it's possible for the commission to grant approval," said CTC Executive Director Robert Remen.

Whether the county pursues the freeway or the highway widening all rides on Remen's key word — "possible."

Last week, the TAMC agreed 16-0 to support the widening, but keep Hatton Canyon as a fall-back plan in the event all of the $41 million cannot stay with the county.

Freeway supporters hope the CTC will either reject the widening plan, or decide to prohibit the county from using the leftover money for other uses. In either scenario, the freeway would prevail as the project-of-choice.

Freeway supporters are relying on the goodwill of the policy Remen refers to — which provides county's a degree of local control.

Remen speaks

Remen said CTC policy, adopted in January, allows for remaining funds to be transferred to other county projects. While not predicting how the commission is going to vote, he said, "I can tell you that this has already been allowed this throughout the state."

The policy, dating back to January, was designed to encourage cost-effective traffic solutions.

Nevertheless, there is no guarantee the CTC will approve the widening proposal when it hears the request Sept. 8. After all, the California Department of Transportation, which supports the freeway and the freeway only, will recommend denial of the widening plan. The CTC can buck Caltrans' recommendation, but it cannot do so comfortably.

The proviso to keep Hatton Canyon alive was the only way for TAMC to break a deadlock. The 17-member panel — consisting of city and county officials — is evenly divided between freeway and widening supporters.

The TAMC vote, Aug. 25, came in the face of Caltrans' immovable stand that the freeway is the only solution from the standpoint of congestion, safety and cost-effectiveness.

Although both sides claimed victory after TAMC's compromise vote, conditions now appear more favorable for advocates of widening Highway 1 than ever.

Carmel's TAMC member, Barbara Brooks, favors the widening. Carmel's official position has been against the freeway.

The City of Carmel is one of the parties joined in a lawsuit against Caltrans and the Federal Highway Administration, contending that the proposed freeway's environmental impact report is inadequate.

Remen referred to the January resolution approved by the CTC allowing counties to have flexible use of their traffic improvement funds. "They have adopted a policy that allows projects that come in at a lower cost to be approved," Remen said.

Countervailing view

Meanwhile, Gregg Albright, Hatton Canyon project coordinator for the California Department of Transportation, is confident the CTC will reaffirm the freeway.

"Fundamentally and historically, the CTC has always relied on Caltrans' expertise," Albright said. "They know we are the traffic professionals. They are truly independent, but they have never have told Caltrans what to build and what not to build. They may ask for modifications on something, but we always reach consensus. For the CTC to approve this project would be precedent-setting action."

Albright called alternative 4/6, the wid-

How Much Can You Afford?

Before you start to look for a home, it's important to be able to know how much you can afford to spend. First consider the amount you can pay for housing each month. Then you can weigh the pros and cons of the many mortgage options available, such as fixed rate and adjustable rate loans.

As a general rule, monthly housing costs should be no more than 28% of your monthly pre-tax income. This includes the mortgage payment, real estate taxes, and insurance. If you do have long term debts (student loans, car payments, or anything else that will take more than six months to repay), debt service plus housing costs should be less than 36% of your pre-tax monthly income.

Your monthly payments can buy varying amounts of house, depending upon which mortgage option you select. Usually an adjustable rate mortgage plan will enable you to qualify for a higher loan amount. The Realtor helping you find a new home can make some of the basic calculations or refer you to a lender who will be able to pre-qualify you for a mortgage.

CVPOA gets first-hand information on RSC conservancy plan

BY SUSAN BECK

A DETAILED outline of the Rancho San Carlos conservancy program will be made public within the next few months, according to Tom Gray, managing partner of the 19,927-acre property south of Carmel Valley.

A preliminary outline of the conservancy program had been presented to board members of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association (CVPOA) in mid-August.

"We were looking for feedback from CVPOA to give us some guidance on our attempt to breach new ground," said Gray. "The conservancy program is generally in line with our initial proposal."

In 1992, the Rancho San Carlos management team laid out a proposal for "a unique community preserve" that would maintain more than 18,000 acres of the ranch permanent open space.

The open space would be managed in its entirety by a professional stewardship organization.

Rancho San Carlos and future homeowners, rather than county taxpayers, would be responsible for costs associated with the the on-going management and restoration of the undeveloped protected land.

Overall satisfaction

Working out the details of the initial concept has been a long process, said Gray. "The devil is in the details. To do it right we have to make sure we establish a policy that can be implemented."

Roger Williams, president of CVPOA, said he and six other board members were satisfied with the Rancho San Carlos conservancy program that was explained to them.

"The program is quite complicated," said Williams. "It involves several other things they are going to be doing during development of their property, such as architectural control of land slopes."

The Rancho San Carlos team and the CVPOA ad hoc committee have met at least 10 times during the past two years.

"We are very fortunate to have the opportunity for question and answer sessions with them," said Williams. "It's very rare."

Roseth to commission: No EIR for lot adjustment

■ Planning director rejects commission decision for environmental study of property expansion

BY PAUL WOLF

TENSIONS BETWEEN property owners and environmentalists have flared up once again in Carmel's lush Pescadero Canyon, and the city's planning director has found himself in the middle.

Acting Director Brian Roseth has announced that an environmental impact report is not needed for a controversial lot expansion, which has been pending since the start of 1993.

Roseth made the preliminary decision Monday, Aug. 30 — five days after the Carmel Planning Commission recommended an EIR for the lot line adjustment.

A citizens group known as Friends of Pescadero Canyon is expected to appeal Roseth's decision after the public comment period is over Sept. 29, according to Linda Smith, who is active with the group.

After the comment period is through, Roseth will have an opportunity to change his mind. So, too, will objectors get the chance to appeal to the Carmel City Council.

"This lot line adjustment could set a precedent for other lots in the canyon," Smith contended. "I imagine we will appeal this."

Roseth countered, "Moving a line doesn't have any impact on the an area. These are basically lines on paper, although I know that sounds like an oversimplification."

The lot in question fronts 2nd Avenue, between Lopez Avenue and North Camino Real, on the north end of town near the Pebble Beach border.

Pescadero Canyon includes an undetermined amount of wetlands and sensitive sloped areas that the city is interested in preserving, according to Roseth.

On the Carmel side at the Pebble Beach border, there are six undeveloped parcels and a number of lots that already have structures on them but have the potential for further development.

The lot is owned by Norm and Barbara Presley. By shifting the line from the adjoining property a full five feet, the couple would turn a slightly substandard 3,800 square foot lot into a standard 4,300 square feet, apparently improving the marketability of the land.

The property is currently occupied by a modest, half-century-old cottage. No plans for new construction have been made public or submitted to the planning department. Nor are there any plans for a remodel, according to Roseth.

The Presleys reportedly are in the process of buying a five-foot-wide strip from the owners of the neighboring property to the east. The couple has recruited the assistance of Chris Tescher, a local developer who owned the adjoining property until recently.

"I guess you could call me the facilitator in this," Tescher said.

Tescher made his plea before the commission: "The lady bugs and the spiders that have lived on this five-foot stretch are not going to say, 'Let's get out of here — the Presleys now own the property.' Nor are the plants going to shrivel up and die because there has been a change of ownership of 500 square feet."

Commission takes action

But commissioners voted 4-2 (with Lindsay Hanna and John Thodos dissenting) to recommend an EIR. "My problem is that this is taking space from an undeveloped area and putting it in a developed area," said Chairman Jack Kennedy. "We have to see what effects that may have."

Commissioner Melanie Billig agreed. "Our general plan has made it clear that Pescadero Canyon is a special area, and we have to bend over backwards to protect it," Billig said.

But Roseth reached a decision on Monday, determining a negative declaration rather than an EIR was called for.

In an interview with The Pine Cone, Roseth explained there were no impacts from the lot line adjustment itself, particularly with no development plans pending.

Any development plans to come forward in the future will require approval from the commission. Each plan would be subject to its own EIR.

Tescher was pleased with Roseth's decision, arguing the acting director made a "professional" reading of the facts. "Asking the Presleys to do an EIR at this point is like asking a home owner who is trying to sell his house to do an EIR on the potential impacts of a new owner," Tescher said.

But Smith said she is concerned about

Federal cable laws drive wedge between haves, have-nots

BY SUSAN BECK

WHILE THE recent rate increase of a few dollars per month for Monterey Peninsula TV Cable (MPTV) subscribers may not seem like a lot, the long-term ramifications may be enormous.

On Wednesday, Sept. 1, MPTV implemented a new rate structure mandated by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC).

Taking its lead from the 1992 Cable Act requiring a national rollback of basic rates for cable TV service, the FCC established a "benchmark" rate for about 10,000 cable companies across the country.

For Sal Balesteri, MPTV's president, meeting the "benchmark" rate meant raising the basic fee for customers because his rates, along with about 50 percent of the nation's cable companies, charged less than the FCC requirements.

"I kept the rates low," said Balesteri. "I expect the phones to start ringing when the bills come out."

MPTV's basic rate increase is $2.70 per month, but for many the increase will be offset by savings on premium services, remote control and converter box rentals. In addition, additional outlets that previously cost $5.25 will be free under the new law.

Balesteri said 50 percent of MPTV customers have additional outlets.

What the future holds is uncertain for MPTV, said Balesteri. "It depends on how subscribers react. It could hurt business. No one wants to be regulated. The government regulates the rate, but they don't regulate the expenses. If we have to cut services, we can't put money back into the system. We will have to be more selective, and if it cost too much, we can't put it on TV."

Long-term backlash

Larry Gerbrandt, senior vice president and analyst for Paul Kagan Associates, Inc. in Carmel — a media and communication financial analysis firm — elaborates on the long-term effects of regulating cable systems.

Gerbrandt said the new law is a perfect example of how government policy makers design legislation to accommodate specific issues for political gain without consideration of the greater good for everyone.

MPTV programming changes hit sour note for Carmel couple

BY SUSAN BECK

LOSING THREE San Francisco channels on MPTV may set well with a large segment of local viewers, but for Carmel residents Harold and Yvonne Saunders, the new programming strikes a blow.

Monterey Peninsula TV Cable dropped KRON, KPIX and KGO out of San Francisco Wednesday, Sept. 1.

For the Saunders, that means no longer watching their daughter, Suzanne Shaw, a co-anchor for KRON, narrate Bay Area news.

"It's a bit of a blow," said Harold

Neighbor comes to rescue

Elderly woman saved in Carmel fire

FIRE OFFICIALS investigate furnace, the cause of the fire.

She moved into her friend's apartment located behind the single dwelling where Kate lives on Aug. 4.

Both structures have double-wall construction unlike the single-wall construction of Hanna Wangoe's duplex next door, which burned to the ground.

The double-wall structures received major damage but can be rebuilt. The total loss of all three buildings including contents is $330,000.

Everything she owned was being stored at the apartment while she waited for a reimbursement from a student loan to MIIS, which is expected Sept. 10.

Red Cross comes to rescue

Laurie Schumann, disaster chairman for Carmel's American Red Cross Chapter, set up lodging for Silver until Sept. 10 in addition to giving her about $350 in vouchers for everything else. An apartment is being held with a minimum deposit. However, Silver has nothing left to set up housekeeping when she moves in.

"I'm just barely hanging on," said Silver. "It's amazing to go through this. You just don't realize how quickly everything can be taken away. But whatever reason, it will work out. I am grateful to be alive, Kate's alive and Tuli is still with me."

CRA to hold post-Labor Day beach cleanup on Tuesday

THE CARMEL Residents Association will hold a post-Labor Day beach cleanup Tuesday, Sept. 7, to clear away debris accumulated over the three-day holiday weekend.

Those who wish to participate should meet at the foot of Ocean Avenue at 10 a.m. Volunteers should wear gloves and bring a small cardboard box to carry litter to the garbage cans.

The CRA sponsors regular beach cleanups at 10 a.m. on the fourth Saturday of every month.

For more information, call 624-3208 or 626-1588.

MAMMOGRAPHY

X-ray examination of the breast (mammography) is the most accurate method currently available for detecting breast cancer. It has been shown that deaths from breast cancer can be reduced by at least one-third by mammography alone.

However, a negative mammogram does not completely exclude the possibility of breast cancer. About 10% of breast lumps appearing normal on a mammogram are malignant. Please remember early detection requires a combination of mammography, monthly self-examination, and yearly clinical breast examination by your physician.

There are three components of quality assurance in mammography:
1. Low dose x-ray machine specifically designed for mammography.
2. Radiology technologist who is state certified in mammography.
3. Experienced radiologist who has had advanced training and education interpreting mammograms.

If your mammography facility is certified by the State Department of Health and The American College of Radiology you will see these certificates attached to the equipment and your concerns regarding quality will be answered. The American Cancer Society's guidelines for mammography are:
Baseline by age 40
Age 40-49: Every 1-2 years
Age 50 and over: Yearly

Remember, The Mammography Center of Monterey is your resource for preventive health care. As Chairperson of the American Cancer Society's Breast Health Program, Mary Lou Catania, R.N., is working to provide information and skills that will help women take responsibility for their health and practice life-saving behaviors. Please call us today at 373-8932 for more information about how we can serve you.

Campus Life

By James Genone

First a senior, then a swagger

I AM A senior at Carmel High School and this is my second year writing for The Carmel Pine Cone (you might remember the column I wrote last year, "Padre Sports Review").

I'm looking forward to contributing once again. The purpose of this column is to keep the residents of Carmel and the surrounding area informed of anything interesting that takes place at the high school.

As the year progresses, I hope to include information about newsworthy events, interviews with interesting people and features on programs and activities involving CHS.

I hope to bring a perspective that is not available from a reporter who isn't affected by the actual events. Looking toward future columns, I plan to focus on student opinions about issues such as the:

- new district drug policy;
- new parking lot;
- condom distribution.

For this week, I want to share some insights about becoming a senior. When school started almost two weeks ago, I began to realize I had finally reached the top of the heap. I get to sit in the "senior corner" during assemblies. My class gets to win spirit points competitions no matter how badly we stink.

It's kind of funny to watch my friends as they walk around in the halls. They all seem to have that spring in their step that says: "Yes, I am a senior." (I'm sure I do this, too.) While some may interpret this new walk as an overly-tight pair of underwear, it actually has to do with a feeling of pride that comes from knowing you've survived three years of being pushed around while you worked hard to get decent grades, find true love, and avoid getting Saturday school for too many tardies.

Last week, I realized another one of the perks of being a senior when I went to the office to get my schedule rearranged. As I walked into the counseling department, my jaw dropped as I saw more than a dozen other students crowding the narrow hall. As I made my way to the end of the line, the cheery face of my counselor appeared from her office.

To my surprise, she didn't take the next person in line, but instead waved for me to come in. As I walked past the grumbling freshmen who had to wait, I smirked and told them, "Don't worry, only three more years."

As I complete my journey down the road to graduation, I will savor every moment of my senior year knowing that it won't last forever. A year from now, I'll probably be reading a similar article by a college senior as I wander aimlessly trying to find my way to English 101!

Next week: The CHS fire — Why?

Speak out! Share your thoughts and ideas in a Letter to the Editor. 250-word limit, please!

Roseth rejects call for environmental report the "cumulative impacts" of development in the canyon. The Friends group asserts that the state coastal act should be sufficient to protect the Pescadero lots from new homes.

A can of worms

The legal restrictions, in fact, may open up a can of worms. The question is, How could property owners derive a reasonable use of their property without the possibility of residential construction?

In the past, Tescher has raised this question.

Roseth acknowledges the general plan and state coastal plans encourage the acquisition of sensitive areas by local governments. Despite this, the five members of the Carmel City Council have already gone on record stating there in not enough money in the city coffers to buy Pescadero Canyon properties.

All sides of the debate appear to favor a "specific plan" — designating land use and zoning standards for Pescadero Canyon.

"Most people seem to agree the city needs to develop a coordinated plan for the canyon rather than react lot by lot with each application that comes in," said Roseth.

A specific plan could mean a single EIR for the whole of the canyon, rather than a half dozen or more documents. "Whichever property owners participated in this EIR could have something to rely on," Roseth said. "It would be more efficient; it wouldn't have to get so repetitive."

After Roseth made the determination for a negative declaration on the lot line adjustment, he scheduled a commission discussion of a specific plan for its Sept. 22 agenda.

Seniors who need a lift

OUR INTREPID senior, Helen, found herself needing transportation for four medical anpointments in one week, not to speak of additional trips for shopping and recreation. She does not have a car and lives in a retirement community without convenient access to public transportation.

The housing complex van takes care of most shopping needs, plus some recreational activities. But for medical appointments, Helen relies primarily on the Monterey County RIDES program. She has nothing but kind words for the service. "They're prompt and very pleasant," she states, and most of the time she can obtain service.

RIDES picks her up at her door and delivers her directly to her appointment. Cost is $1 one way. Exact change or ticket in advance is required. A telephone call to RIDES serves as registration for the program. Limited service is available for out-of-county medical trips, at additional cost.

Helen could also avail herself of the RIDES reimbursed taxi service, although it really doesn't fit into her budget.

Most taxi comnanies listed in the phone book participate in the program. Riders pay the usual fare and at the end of the month mail their receipts to RIDES, which will reimburse 50 percent of the cost up to $45. All RIDES services are for those who cannot use public transit. A former resource, the Carmel-by-the-Sea scrip taxi program, has been discontinued due to budget considerations.

According to De Etta Nicely, RIDES transportation coordinator, the agency operates 20 vans daily, providing almost 5,000 one-way trips monthly. While more than 90 percent of ride requests have been met in the past, this does not reflect all the unmet needs in the County—people who are not aware of the programs and those who stop calling if they are turned down once or twice. Increasing demand is anticipated while funding has leveled out.

Helen can call on a friend to drive her to appointments not covered otherwise, or for emergencies. She is fortunate to have friends willing to fill in.

For those able to use public transportation, Monterey-Salinas Transit (MST) offers discounted fares in Monterey County, 50 cents per zone one way by showing a Transit Courtesy Card or Medicare card. Exact change is required. Most busses are wheelchair accessible.

There are a number of possibilities locally in addition to MST and RIDES that help fill in some of the gaps for medical and other trips. Most of these rides are tied in to a specific illness. Unfortunately, these programs are bursting at the seams and in dire need of more volunteer drivers.

The Carmel Foundation provides an excellent van service for its members only. The Alliance on Aging's Friendly Visitor Program Escort Service has more medical ride requests than it can handle, so only can be used as a last resort.

Don't give up

If you're looking for a lift, be persistent, particularly for medically necessary appointments. Our shining example, Helen, before she was familiar with the options, said she sometimes felt like "...throwing in the towel," and foregoing treatments. Now that she's learned the ropes, she gets out and about, if not with ease, at least fairly comfortably. The special rates and discounts help a lot, even though they do take a bite out of her small income.

Bob Bilek, chairman of the Area Agency on Aging, and a member of the Advisory Committee and Social Services Transportation Agency, urges those who can to enlist as volunteer drivers. He points out that the need is great and that when you volunteer, "...some senior's life becomes a little bit easier." Contact nonprofit health organizations listed in the phone book or call R.S.V.P. (Retired Senior Volunteer Program) to offer your services. Driving someone who's stuck at home to a medical appointment has to be one of the most appreciated and satisfying volunteer jobs around.

HEARING FACT NO. 2

If your hearing is less than normal, then you're pretty normal.

Eighteen million other Americans have the same problem.
More persons suffer with loss of hearing than from diabetes, high blood pressure and arthritis combined! So although you are special, your difficulty is not.
Make sure your Family Practivce Physician knows about your hearing loss - however minor you may think it is. Most people can be helped through surgery, medicine or hearing aids.
If medicine or surgery is not your answer, you may benefit from a hearing aid. One of those new, advanced, miniature instruments more and more people are wearing.

It's McPherson vs. Patton in Assembly seat showdown campaign — the fact that I have no government experience," McPherson said playfully Wednesday morning, discussing his strong showing the evening before. "But that is not necessarily an issue that will work against me."

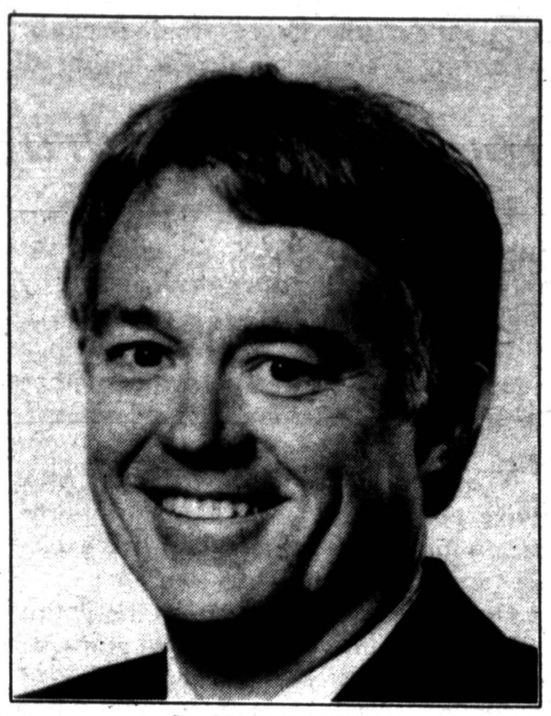
Gary Patton, the best top finisher among four Democrats and a long-time Santa Cruz County Supervisor, pointed to the irony: "I will not be the underdog, but I will be running like one (in the Nov. 2 runoff). So far, it has been me who has been attacked by both Democrats and Republicans."

BRUCE MCPHERSON



GARY PATTON

Prevailing themes

McPherson, a retired newspaperman who hails from a prominent and wealthy Santa Cruz family, has tapped into the theme shared by the nine Assembly candidates who sought Congressman Sam Farr's old seat.

The message has been loud and clear: State government is in need of reform. The insiders say they have the ability to carry this reform out; the outsiders describe themselves as untainted.

"I will be focusing on redefining the role of government," McPherson said. "The hardest work is yet to come."

Meanwhile, Patton is the ultimate insider. As supervisor the past 19 years, he has the experience and connections that McPherson cannot touch. An established environmentalist, Patton puts forward a sizable record of service in elected office.

In the unofficial final vote count, McPherson earned 16,168 votes to Patton's 12,229. The third-place finisher over all was Democrat John Laird, former Santa Cruz mayor. He received 8,179 votes.

Pacific Grove's Susan Whitman placed second for Republicans. She earned 7,274 votes, with most of her support appearing close to home.

ening, "sloppy and poorly thought-out." He said the planned triple-lane left turn from Carmel at Carpenter Street and Highway 1 is dangerous, "yet the whole project rests on that turn."

Gary Black, an engineer representing the Hatton Canyon Coalition, which opposes the freeway, disagreed. He said the grading could be altered to make the turn safe.

Albright believes the improvements to service levels in the widening would not be sufficiently improved to make the project worth its cost. Yet, he acknowledged, "Doing something is still better than doing nothing."

Nevertheless, should it approve 4/6, Caltrans will be expected to take part in the final designs. That is ironic because, according to sources, Caltrans fought all the way through the process of designing the basic 4/6 concept.

Said Albright: "Technically, we don't have to take part in a project that is a bad use of public money. But, politically, we have always had a cooperative relationship with CTC."

Youth to battle drug use with education

CARMEL'S COMMUNITY Against Substance Abuse (CASA) commits the organization to battling drug usage by young people.

Now, the group stands ready with a Youth to Youth Conference which will be held locally on Thursday and Friday, Sept. 2-3.

"This isn't a one-time deal," says CASA spokesperson Tim Harris. "A solid foundation for change is being laid. It's exciting to see that happening."

On Thursday, 20 teens from the Youth to Youth network will train 100 students and adults to help with the conclave. This step will happen at Carmel Youth Center from 7:50 a.m. until 2:50 p.m.

Friday's get-together will be at Carmel Middle School from 7:50 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Featured will be various anti-drug workshops, leadership sessions and a youth panel. About 600 Carmel Middle School students are expected to attend.

Co-sponsoring with CASA are Carmel Unified School District, California Youth to Youth Alliance and Teens Educating and Creating New Alternatives.

Youth to Youth was started in Ohio more than a decade ago as a drug prevention and youth leadership program. In July, about 30 Carmel students took part in the Youth to Youth Western States Conference at Claremont College.

"When kids are doing these sorts of things," Harris says, "they don't have time for drugs and alcohol. It's not going to be cool to use drugs and alcohol any more."

Doris Day's Best Friends

By Doris Day

Take a sentimental journey

CHILDREN AND animals share so many wonderful qualities – purity, innocence, unconditional love, joy, playfulness, sweetness – but those very qualities make them vulnerable, and we all know that too many children and animals suffer from abuse and neglect.

They need our help and on October 9, you can do your part. I'll be hosting "Doris Day and Her Best Friends," an exciting day of celebrity golf, tennis, croquet and a dinner-dance featuring my dear friend Les Brown and his Band of Renown. This fund raiser will benefit three non-profit children's charities in Monterey County (Family Service Agency of the Monterey Peninsula, Boys and Girls Clubs of the Monterey Peninsula and Monterey Peninsula Outreach) and the Doris Day Pet Foundation.

I hope you'll join us at the beautiful Quail Lodge for a fun-filled day and an evening to remember. For reservations and information, please call (408) 375-PETS. I look forward to seeing you there!

On the road

We've come across a book that will be a great help to those of you who travel with your pets. It's called Pets R' Permitted, and it not only lists motels, but American Boarding Kennels Association-approved kennels for day boarding along the way. It also has a nationwide pet-sitter location service. And best of all, it's updated annually so you'll know the information is right up to date. For your copy, send $8.95 plus $2 shipping and handling to: ACI, P.O. Box 3930, Torrance, CA 90510.

Hill's introduces HealthBlend

The folks at Hill's Pet Nutrition who give us Science Diet and Prescription Diet formulas have come up with a new pet food called HealthBlend. This diet was formulated for healthy dogs and cats and was designed to help pets avoid common health problems, including obesity and renal failure.

According to Hill's, HealthBlend will help to control levels of fat, calories, protein and phosphorus, while providing ample nutrients for energy and healthy growth. Available in kibble and canned forms, Healthblend has three formulas for dogs (Puppy, Adult and Geriatric) and two for cats (Kitten and Adult).

These foods will be available exclusively through your veterinarian. Hill's products are excellent and highly recommended, so if you decide to check out this new diet, I'd be interested in your comments.

See you next week!

Letters from the heart

DAD DIDN'T like writing much. Like most physicians, his handwriting was hurried, indecipherable scribbles. So I never expected, or got, many letters from him. Oh, maybe an occasional note. Or a note written by mom with his "XXXOOO" at the end. But that's all.

About a year ago, his notes verged on letters. And a few months ago, for the first time, I received a full correspondence. It was staggering. One full page, front and back, written on his medical letterhead. It opened with a joke (characteristic of him) and progressed to a description of Washington state, where he and my mother had just moved. It was April and he described "the world is ablaze with blossoms - even the weeds along the roadside are beautiful." I'd never heard him talk like that before.

Dad died two weeks ago. And I thank my higher power for urging me to save that letter. It's as close as I can get to him. He was an intellectual, proficient in several languages, and an excellent grammarian. He used to call me on my improper syntax. And so I cherish even the one word he misspelled - "usefull" - and the way he poked fun at hs hillbilly upbringing by telling me he was "sa' praoud" of me. "Hooan" was his pet name for me. But, strangely, he opened this last letter with "Dear, dear, Susan."

It was with thls bittersweet angst that I attended A. R. Gurney's, "Love Letters," a benefit play for the American Lung Association of the Central Coast, Saturday night. To hear the beautiful Phyllis Coates exchange her thoughts via letters - to TV and film star Alan Young was more than moving.

This poignant play, directed by Bart Williams for the event, is about two friends, Andrew and Melissa, who follow each other's lives through letters, starting with a childhood birthday invitation.

Coates is a remarkable woman and friend. I first visited her at her Carmel condominium several years ago where I interviewed her for a feature article. She is best known for her role as Lois Lane in The Adventures of Superman series. And I remembered her telling me that people can still identify her Lois voice wherever she goes.

Vitality shined through

She continues to act in movies, most recently with Walter Matthau and Whoopi Goldberg. And her vitality shined through as she portrayed a young girl, kicked out of boarding school for insouciance, cursing, smoking and other things.

While Coates delivered her lines at a small writing desk, she gesticulated convincingly. And rarely looked down at the letters she turned over, page by page.

Young, on the other hand, rarely looked up from the page. I am told he had just flown in the night before and had no time to practice with Coates.

With that in mind, he gave a charming caricature of a man, naive and oftentimes spineless, but wise enough to continue his correspondence with a witty female.

Cole Weston, holding hands with his wife, Paulette, was restless during the play. The renowned artist/director said he'd have insisted on more animation, had he been directing the play. "I hope he (Young) loses his place," he joked.

As for letter writing, he said he has little time. "I've got business overseas and all over the country. I phone instead. But I love to receive letters."

In the past, he has burned bundles of love letters when he changed wives or partners.

Paulette, however, has saved all his post cards and letters to her.

Deana Leavitt, sitting on my left, said at intermission that she has been told she's a good letter writer. "People say my person comes through."

To her dismay, all of her saved letters burned in a fire a few years ago.

She said her aunt Betsy Collins, a prior resident of Hacienda Carmel saved every letter she ever received. After Collins' recent death, her daughter, Ann Richardson, is mailing each one of them back to the original writer to help preserve the family history.

The play progressed through marriages for both Andrew and Melissa, but never to each other; Andrew's climb as a politician; and Melissa's (Coate's) convincing descent into alcoholism, ending in her death.

Coates was radiant at the reception following the play and received an armful of flowers, to which she insisted the "excellent audience" also take a bow.

JEAN MAHONEY, Bob Barr and event chairwoman Maggie Eastwood nibbled on an array of delectable desserts after the play.

DOROTHY CAPEN, president of the Del Monte Forest Property owners, took the opportunity to meet the new president of the Lone Cypress Company, Shoichi Okochi, at a reception at The Lodge at Pebble Beach.

SHOICHI BEAMED as he met Judy Pennycook, Monterey County supervisor.

INCLUDED IN the welcoming team were: Ray Bryne, "Doc" Etienne, and Pacific Grove mayor Jeanne Byrne.

OUR VERY own mayor Ken White was on hand to welcome Okochi, the new president of the Lone Cypress Company. He is seen here with Gilbert Craig.

Maggie Eastwood, a supporter of the lung association who chaired the tasteful event, said it was too bad that letter writing is a dying art. "I love receiving letters," she said. "And I have a few I cherish."

Singer Linda Purdy said in a housecleaning foray she threw hers away. However, she saves videos.

I told her I wish I had a video of my father. But maybe the one in my head is enough.

Karen Fulton, executive director of the lung association, said, "It's exciting that now, more than ever, people understand our mission."

That is to promote lung health, which includes fighting the tobacco industry, confronting air pollution (yes, Dorothy, there is smog in Monterey County), and challenging the resurgence of tuberculosis.

About 200 people attended the Love Letters fundraiser. "It is a fabulous way to raise money," Fulton said. "We'll probably do it again."

Fulton lost her father this year to lung cancer. And you can be sure she treasures her father's correspondence...

Fashon raises funds for Buddy Program

Local executive women gathered at Bradley's Restaurant on Cannery Row, on Aug. 24, for an evening of fashions, by Loes Hinse, and fun benefitting the Buddy Program of the Monterey Peninsula.

Organized by Smith & Jones, the Monterey meeting and event management company, for Gloria McPherson, owner of Resort II Me, and Toni Doyle Jepson, executive director of the Carmel Business Association, the event featured a delicious light supper prepared by chef/owner Bradley Jones.

A portion of the money raised benefitted the buddy program which seeks to strengthen families and help children, who come from predominantly one-parent homes, to grow up to be healthy, productive adults through careful matches with positive adult role models.

Adult volunteers and fund are needed for the buddy program. Call 655-9231.

Federal cable laws drive wedge between haves, have-nots

"Unfortunately, out of the 50 percent of cable companies that were charging high rates, some were in the hometowns of a few rather influencial legislators," said Gerbrandt. "Namely, Al Gore, Daniel Inouye, John Danforth and Edward Markey."

He said the cable issue became a political football: Republicans verses Democrats.

"They said they wanted to punish 'bad actor' cable systems," said Gerbrandt. "President Bush vetoed the bill, but it was overturned by Congress just before the presidential election in an effort to embarrass him. It was the only veto by Bush that Congress overruled."

The hardest hit in the new cable rate system will be those people with single TV sets, who are usually the lower-income subscribers, said Gerbrandt.

The bill also provides incentives to eliminate senior citizen discounts, lifeline rates and other mechanisms that have given breaks to lower-income subscribers.

Gerbrandt added that the people who can afford extra TV sets and additional services will receive the bulk of the rate reductions.

"When government tries to manipulate free enterprise it comes back and bites you in ways you never imagined," said Gerbrandt. "Every industry has its bad apples. But Congress regulates everyone. As it turns out, MPTV was a good apple."

Historical note

On a historical note, Gerbrandt pointed out that between 1984-'92 — when cable systems were unregulated — "the greatest explosion of creative programing occurred."

Developing high-tech programming is expensive, but by allocating the expense to only 50 percent of the subscribers, the cost will be exorbitant, said Gerbrandt.

"I do anticipate another explosion in programming in the latter half of the '90s," said Gerbrandt. "But, what's going to happen is that the people who want those services will have to pay 10 times as much for them. The small cable systems can't pass on the cost to all of the customers.

"Only those who can afford it will be able to have the more sophisticated programming. We're going to eventually end up with a technological elite based on an ability to pay."

Gerbrandt said that cable services in the past were launched on the basic rate. But now, those services are being forced to develop as a pay service.

"My greatest concern is that in an effort to save the American consumer two to three bucks," said Gerbrandt, "the government has widened the gap between the 'haves and have-nots.' That is something that goes against the grain of a democratic society."

The losers

According to a report by Thomas P. Southwick in the Aug. 30 issue of Cable World, instead of adding channels based on market demand, cable systems are forced to tailor their program offerings to the complex equations set by Washington.

Southwick also states banks and other lenders are reluctant to fund cable companies until the cash flow after regulation is determined.

The financial holding pattern is forcing many cable systems to postpone or scale back plans to upgrade programming.

"The losers in this exercise won't be the cable companies," wrote Southwich.

"We are confident they will find ways to continue to grow. And it won't be the members of Congress who will continue to live in their Alice-In-Wonderland world. And it won't be the FCC, which will get a bigger budget and more employees.

"The losers will be the American consumers, the very people who were supposed to benefit from the 'Cable Television Consumer Protection and Competition Act of 1992.'"

Carmel couple's disappointment

Saunders. "We enjoy watching her, naturally. But I can't blame MPTV. However, being a native San Franciscan, I like to watch San Francisco news. It's like old-home week."

MPTV's president, Sal Balesteri, said the San Francisco stations were dropped because 75 percent of the time they were "blacked out" as a result of duplicating local programming.

Instead, MPTV has added three new networks as part of the standard cable package. American Movie Classics, Sneak Prevue — a pay-per-view show — and SportsChannel, which began two months ago to follow Giants' baseball through the summer.

He added that San Francisco's KTVU news — shown at 10 p.m. on MPTV — is the highest rated news station in that city. In addition, said Balesteri, KNTV out of San Jose will be shown at 6 p.m.

"It was a tough decision," said Balesteri. "It's difficult to satisfy everyone."

Saunders said he is aware of KTVU's 10 p.m. news broadcast, but laments it doesn't replace a 5 or 6 p.m. news show.

"Ten o'clock at night is usually too late," said Harold Saunders. "I'll be happy when we get some competition through the telephone company and satellites."

A Santa Cruz County flavor to Assembly seat election

County was even poorer than her campaign originally had anticipated. "We underestimated the power of simply being a McPherson," she said Wednesday morning.

The McPherson family owned The Santa Cruz Sentinel for more than a century, before selling it 1982.

McPherson has boasted of writing more than 3,000 editorials for The Sentinel. "I have been as close to the process as anyone," he said.

But not too close. "There is a sense that, 'Outsider is good, insider is bad,'" said David Yamada, a political science instructor at Monterey Peninsula College. "I am not saying this is the only factor. But it is a factor."

Patton said he is convinced voters will discover McPherson's weaknesses. "Bruce would go to Sacramento as an interested observer," Patton said. "And this is not a time to send an interested observer to represent us."

While newcomers have posed strong challenges in the past, according to Yamada, the mood of the moment has never been so favorable to those who may have been previously written off as lacking experience.

Neophyte Jeff Davi's 12-vote loss to incumbent Monterey County Supervisor Sam Karas in the Aug. 3 election was another case in point.

The June 8 primary had only hinted at the potential strength of the Davi candidacy. With a degree of charisma and an emphasis on "failed leadership," Davi kept Karas on the defensive throughout the campaign. Karas won 9,201 votes to 9,189.

Despite a soft-spoken personal style, McPherson levels equally strong charges. Patton embraces "economy-killing policies," and he "must be retired" from politics, McPherson wrote in one campaign flier.

Inevitably, Patton will try to show one does not have to be on the outside to be reform-minded. Of the major candidates in the primary, only Patton has refused to accept money from PACs.

His attempt to assume the "grass-roots, candidate-of-the-people" role could undermine McPherson's attempts to portray Patton as the status quo candidate. Issues and party politics may prevail this fall.

As the Karas-Davi race proved, making predictions is hazardous business. And the task is no easier when the whole political game appears in flux.

HAROLD AND YVONNE SAUNDERS

Carmel couple disappointed at MPTV programming changes

Inc. in Carmel, media and communications financial analysis firm, said Balesteri's decision was sound.

"The three San Francisco stations were held over from the '70s at a time when local stations weren't very good," said Gerbrandt. "The fact that MPTV carried three San Francisco stations hurt local stations by taking money from them. The new programming will actually help local programs in Monterey and Salinas."

For Harold and Yvonne Saunders, who have watched their daughter narrating the news for the past 17 years, however, the change is personal and "a little disappointing."

Obituaries

Lloyd T. Goldsmith

Lloyd Tanner Goldsmith, of Carmel, a retired sound engineer with Warner Brothers Studio, died Aug. 14 at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 89.

He was born on April 19, 1904, in Floral Park Long Island, N.Y. Mr. Goldsmith, a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, served in the Army Signal Corps Photographic Center during World War II.

He received a service award of merit. His family were prominent floriculturalists in New York. His motion picture career started in Astoria, N.Y., with Paramount Pictures. Later, with his wife, he moved to the Hollywood area, where he was associated with Warner Brothers.

He enjoyed gardening and raising cats. Following retirement, the couple moved to Carmel 20 years ago.

Mr. Goldsmith is survived by his wife, Hellen Taylor Goldsmith.

No services were held. Paul Mortuary was in charge of cremation arrangements.

Ann Swift Kennedy

Ann Swift Kennedy, of Carmel, a former professional golfer, died Aug. 13 of liver disease at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital. She was 66.

Mrs. Kennedy was born on Jan. 18,1927, in New York City. She graduated from Santa Monica High School and attended the University of California at Los Angeles. A championship swimmer and golfer, she appeared as a swimmer in several motion pictures.

Mrs. Kennedy joined the Ladies Professional Golf Association and played on the tour for several years before teaching golf in California and Hawaii.

She is survived by her husband, John; three sons, David Anderson of Santa Fe, N.M., Bruce Hamilton of Camarillo and Scott Hamilton of Los Angeles; a daughter, Dana Hamilton of Canoga Park; a stepdaughter, Amy Rosato of Kailua-Kona, Hawaii; a stepson, Gavin Kennedy of Calabasas; and two brothers, Peter Kimball of Albany, Ga., and Steven Kimball of Sacramento.

At her request, no services were held. Her ashes were scattered over her favorite golf course. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the LPGA Foundation to support their junior golf program.

Arthur M. Sargent

Arthur M. Sargent, of Del Mesa Carmel, a retired certified public accountant, writer and poet, died of a heart attack Aug. 12 at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 84.

Mr. Sargent was born Feb,. 10, 1909, in new Jersey and spent his early life n New York state. He lived in Atherton for 30 Sargent years, moving to Carmel Valley in 1980.

Mr. Sargent attended the Virginia Military Institute and Stanford University, where he majored in journalism. After working as a reporter for the Watsonville Register, he was named manager of the Watsonville Chamber of Commerce, where he served from 1936 until he enlisted in the Army Air Corps in 1942.

After four years of service, he retired from the Air Corps with the rank of major. In 1946, Mr. Sargent became executive director of the California Society of Certified Public Accountants.

In 1966, he was named executive vice president of the CPA Foundation for Education and Research, which he founded. He retired in 1974.

During his career, he was the only non-CPA ever to be awarded an honorary membership in the CPA profession. He also received its Distinguished Service Award.

He was a president of the National CPA Executives Organization, president of the Society of Public Relations, president of the Monterey Peninsula Chapter of the World Affairs Council, president of the California Industry Educational Council and a member of the board of directors of Del Mesa Carmel. Mr. Sargent was a writer and poet and published his autobiography and three books of poetry. He was a member of the Institute of Poetic Sciences.

He is survived by his wife, Winifred; two sons, Ronald of Watsonville and Spencer of Lahaina, Hawaii; a daughter, Deborah of Saratoga and two grandsons.

No services were held.

Help for veterans exposed to radiation

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) has inaugurated a special toll-free telephone number for veterans who were exposed to radiation during military service.

The 24-hour number 1-800-827-0365 is available to veterans and family members weekdays from 5 a.m.-2:30 p.m. Pacific time and is staffed by counselors at the VA Regional Office and Insurance Center in Philadelphia. After-hours and weekend callers may leave a recorded message, which will be returned the following business day.

Orchestra opportunities available

Do you have a child in the fourth through the eight grades who would like to play an instrument? Beginning, intermediate, advanced lessons and a chance to be part of an orchestra are being offered to all peninsula public and independent school children on Monday afternoons at All Saint's Day School in Carmel. For more information call 624-9171.

Speakers on Alzheimer's available

November is Alzheimer's Disease Month and several of the board members of the Monterey County Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association are offering their professional expertise and experience to organizations that want to learn more about the disease.

Alzheimer's disease affects 4,400,000 victims nationwide, and more than 4,000 in Monterey County. For each victim, at least one other person is directly affected by the stresses involved in caregiving. The time, energy and emotional involvement necessary to care effectively for an Alzheimer victims grows as the disease progresses and the victims become unable to do anything for themselves.

For more information or a request for a speaker call in Monterey at 647-9890 or Salinas at 757-0531.

Interplast lecture slated for Sunday in Carmel

A LECTURE on Interplast, a volunteer organization of doctors who offer reconstructive surgery in 19 undeveloped nations, will be given by Dr. Kenneth Bloome at 9 a.m., Sunday, Sept. 5, at the Church of the Wayfarer on Lincoln and Seventh streets in Carmel.

KENNETH BLOOME

Headquarted in Palo Alto for the past 22 years, members of Interplast have sought to change the lives of 22,000 children, bringing back smiles and a chance to live a normal life.

Some of the surgery involves children with cleft lips, birth deformities and burn injuries.

In addition, the Domestic Patient Program enables Interplast to bring 17 patients every year to the United States for surgery that is too complex to perform in the patient's country.

Interplast also has a program to teach colleagues in undeveloped nations the techniques of reconstructive surgery at no cost.

Bloome was raised in Los Angeles and educated at UCLA. He later graduated from Medical College in Ohio, followed by a pediatric residency at the University of Southern California, Los Angeles County Medical Center.

For the past 11 years, he has been associated with the Santa Cruz Medical Clinic.

The Golden Years

The "aging of America" is widely recognized — the rapidly growing population that is over 65. What lies head is more pronounced. The Census Bureau now projects the over-65 population at 80 million in the year 2050, compared to 32 million today. Because of immigration and birth rates, the Bureau estimates that in the year 2050, white non-Hispanics will account for 65 percent of the elderly, vs. 76 percent now.

A lesson in follow-through

WHEN MEMBERS of the public gathered for one final chance to speak their piece on the Hatton Canyon freeway, opponents of the project -- the environmental contingent — were conspicuous by their absence.

Actually, on this day, Aug. 25, a few were present. Only three spoke — a paltry smattering for such a widespread movement.

Freeway supporters were well-prepared and impassioned. They eagerly approached the microphone and attempted to influence the final — and most critical — vote by the Transportation Agency for Monterey County (TAMC).

When they said they had the majority, it was apparent they were speaking the truth. While they were gaining strength with each hearing, the other camp wasn't following up and reinforcing their earlier successes.

The public comment period set the tone for 17-member panel's deliberation. The result was a compromise vote to pursue the widening of Highway 1 while still keeping Hatton Canyon alive. A vote or two more from supporters of widening could have killed the freeway right there.

A burning issue flickers

What the opponents failed to do was keep the environment at the forefront of TAMC members' consciousness. The focus remained on traffic levels of service, job creation and cost-effectiveness.

Due to the relative silence of freeway opponents, the primary reason to oppose the project was never reinforced at this meeting. TAMC members who supported the freeway did not have to justify their position, and they offered some of the briefest comments ever witnessed for a consequential decision. Only supporters of widening spoke at length.

There was hardly anyone there compelling them to discuss such topics as wetland mitigations or loss of wildland habitat. And the representatives from such towns as Greenfield and Gonzales gave every appearance of not caring about these concerns.

"We didn't want to harangue them," said one anti-freeway activist the day after the TAMC vote. "The environmental issues are a given."

There was no evidence that was the case. Consider the following:

- Third District Supervisor Tom Perkins — who once said publicly "there are more birds in my backyard than in Hatton Canyon" — was fence-sitting. He was looking for compromise, even though he supports the freeway.
- First District Supervisor Simon Salinas supported the freeway but quickly changed his mind in favor of the motion to seek the alternative. He was hoping to break a deadlock "to move the process forward."
- Fourth District Supervisor Edith Johnsen was an unknown quantity, as were assorted representatives from the small rural cities. Because they couldn't get what they wanted, they supported the compromise motion, keeping Hatton Canyon as a backup.
- With the redistricting and the Aug. 3 election, there was at least one additional pro-freeway vote.

Running the show

After the public comment period, Caltrans engineer Gregg Albright basically ran the show, followed up by the mildest of rebuttals from Hatton Canyon Coalition engineer Gary Black.

There may well have been a touch of complacency on the part of the environmentalists following the two favorable meetings from earlier this year.

"When you feel it is going well for your side, you tend not to go," said Councilwoman Barbara Brooks, A TAMC member and supporter of widening Highway 1.

No one raised a stink about the fact that Caltrans only presented a single alternative to the freeway, rather than two, as Brooks and others were expecting.

The Hatton Canyon Coalition has spent more than $75,000 to fight the freeway. Aided by a high profile firm — Shute, Mahaly and Weinberger — they now are anticipating court dates in the coming weeks.

Environmentalists frequently do an admirable job hiring attorneys, combing through documents and circulating petitions, but polished presentations often have not been their strong suit.

When freeway supporters have the tenacity of, say, Albright, the environmentalists need to match them at every turn. Whether it's saving Pescadero Canyon in Carmel or Hatton Canyon, there are few polished and forceful voices to put forward the environmental cause.

One of the first rules of politics is: never miss an opportunity. In this case, it was difficult to decipher how TAMC was going to vote.

Apparently, many of the dedicated environmentalists didn't find out the results of that vote until the next morning's paper.

Don't destroy auditorium

Dear Editor:

This is an SOS (Save our Sunset).

The sounds coming out of the meetings between the BOOR/A architects and the Sunset Center Task Force are not pleasant sounds. The comment about a "dead auditorium" that will be enlivened by "raising the roof" ignores a principle understood by all architectural acousticians: increasing the volume increases the reverberation time and decreases the clarity of articulated sound.

For over 20 years, the internationally-renowned musicians presented by the Chamber Music Society have been asked about the acoustics of Sunset Auditorium. Invariably they have described the facility as acoustically "good" or "excellent."

Raising the roof would enhance large romantic orchestral and choral music, but it would degrade chamber music, voice articulation in speech, vocal solos, opera duets, and rapid passages of Bach and the classical composers.

Let us not destroy this beautiful auditorium. We need: 1) a larger stage; 2) better backstage facilities for the artists; and 3) better bathrooms.

We do not need a repetition of New York's very expensive, very troubled Lincoln Center.

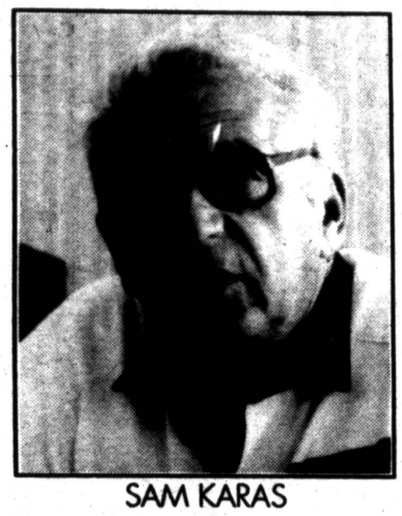
Balancing act on county budget

THE MONTEREY County Board of Supervisors met this week to adopt a budget for this fiscal year, July 1, 1993 to June 30, 1994. The budget to be approved totaled $288 million, with 85 percent of it being from General Funds.



SAM KARAS

State law requires that counties must present a balanced budget regardless of the financial impact on the services the budget provides for. Because of this legal requirement, our board of supervisors finds itself making hard decision, especially when funds are limited as they are for this year.

To make our supervisors' task even more difficult, approval of our county budget depends on final fund adjustments of the state budget. The difficulty arises because many of the programs at our local level are mandated by the state, yet necessary funds to cover this cost are not fully implemented by the state. Thus, we supervisors are forced to reduce or curtail the affected programs.

This fiscal year found local elected officials facing a $17 million deficit due to the $2.6 billion property tax theft by our state legislators. The funds involved in that theft would have been used for educational needs in our state. We are all aware of the need for financial aid in our schools, but we cannot lose sight of the drastic impact this action will have on programs for the poor, the disadvantaged and the elderly.

Realizing that counties throughout the state could not sustain such a financial loss in their budgets, the state legislators and Gov. Wilson approved SB 509, which extends the one-half cent sales tax from July 1 to Dec. 31, 1993. This extension provided that $7 million of the sales tax was to be returned to Monterey County.

But in approving the legislation, the state stipulated that the $7 million should be used for public safety programs. There is great feeling among knowledgeable people that the $7 million was intended to ensure that public safety services were to be mounted at the present level with the remainder of the money to be used for other general funds programs.

Extend the sales tax

To further complicate our county's budget problems, the state legislation approved SCAI, which places on the November ballot a measure that, if approved by the voters of California, will extend the one-half cent sales tax beginning Jan. 1, 1994.

All funds realized from the sales tax will again be directed at aiding public safety programs. If the voters fail to approve this ballot measure, our county stands to lose the $7 million. To approve the measure will only require a majority in favor.

I support all public safety programs. However, I protest the tactic used by our state legislators to gain support for the sales tax measure. Counties were notified that failure on their part to support this issue will result in the loss of allocated funds.

The board of supervisors did manage to balance the budget after facing a proposed $17 million deficit. As previously stated, the extension of the sales tax to Dec. 31, 1993, enabled the state to return approximately $7 million to the county.

Cut $7 million

With the cooperation of our departments and union leaders, we were able to cut an additional $7 million. Special mention must be given to our county administrative office, which worked hard to bring the budget in balance.

To accomplish the task of balancing the budget, vacant funded positions were not filled. Additionally, departments realized savings by cutting many expenses, and by curtailing programs. The remainder of the deficit was covered by adjusted state funds as well as money saved and carried over from the previous year.

The critical issue we faced this year was how to ensure that as many essential services as possible could still be provided. In accomplishing this objective, public safety, health and social services were considered top priorities. Also, the board agreed that in good conscience, certain libraries had to be kept open. Programs affecting the homeless and hungry were of vital concern as well.

Whatever decisions the Monterey County Board of Supervisors made this week were reached through the democratic process. Public hearings were held to allow everyone the opportunity to express their feelings. I urge everyone to become involved in the process.

Sam Karas, who for nine years served as 4th District supervisor, was elected Aug. 3 to a four-year term as 5th District supervisor.

ing the FCC.

You say the increase may be offset by savings on equipment rentals and additional outlets? As I live in a studio apartment in a retirement facility, I can't see how I could benefit from this. I gather this extra fee is to make up for the "limited service" you have been forced to reduce.

When I lived in San Francisco, I subscribed to Viacom Cable and because I am a senior citizen with very low income, I received the cable service for $10 per month. For this $10, I was able to get every station you provide for the standard service.

When I moved here and applied for your service, I was horrified at the cost and mentioned to your representative the price I was paying in San Francisco as a low-income senior, and asked if his company had such a plan. He laughed, and said, "Lady this ain't S.F. and if you think this is expensive, wait 'till you see the increases we have in store for you." How true he was!

I would have thought a facility with 200 apartments, almost all with cable TV would have been given a special rate. But no, your sense of service to the community in which you make your money is sadly lacking. What you need is competition and I sincerely hope the telephone company and others will soon break your monopoly.

I am now forced to transfer to the limited service as any extra fee is nothing less than price-gouging on your part. The only channels I use are Lifetime, A&E, Discovery and Bravo, plus occasionally the PBS stations. Now, the first four mentioned will not be available to me. As you have not yet reached agreement with four of the stations, what plans have you made to replace them?

Can we have the four stations for the limited service that I will no longer receive? Why can't we have a choice of stations? The questions are endless.

A lone sour note

Dear Editor:

Once again all members of the Carmel Bach Festival have offered an outstanding program, which all of us on the peninsula can be proud of. Missing only were Ken Ahrens' recitals and his performances at the Carmel Mission Basilica.

While the loss of Mr. Ahrens' talent was the only sour note this year, I hope we can see more of Ken Ahrens' talent at the 1994 Carmel Bach Festival.

An appalling format

Dear Editor:

After listening to the new program recently presented on radio station KROC, I was truly appalled. To my way of thinking, the KROC program has sunk to the level of a great many programs on the Monterey Peninsula. This type of broadcasting is totally lacking in restfulness and symphonic harmony. There are a great many people living here who much prefer symphony music to the blare of rock and jazz.

Perhaps someday a classical music station will again be available — let's hope so!

Battering Boxer's claims

Dear Editor:

U.S. Sen. Barbara Boxer's (D-Calif.) recent commentary in The Pine Cone ("Call for action — gun violence must end," Aug. 12) recommending more gun control laws demonstrates a classic distortion of statistics to prove a false premise.

For the year 1990, she contrasts the 10,567 deaths by handguns in the United States with statistics from six other countries — Britain, Sweden, Switzerland, Japan, Australia and Canada — each of which had fewer than 100 deaths caused by handguns in that same year.

But Sen. Boxer, like so many other politicians who fraudulently embrace superficial statistical analyses in their eagerness for political success, has neglected to acknowledge the fundamental differences between the United States and these six "model" countries.

All these countries exist in freedom today only because of their abject dependence on American military power throughout numerous hot and cold wars. The free spirit of American fighting men was in turn maintained by their determination to own guns of all kinds.

But a still deeper reason accounts for these misleading statistics: all six of these supposedly "model" countries are virtually island nations with either small populations or natural geological protection, as well as social, racial and ethnic homogeneity, in contrast to the United States, which makes their people both more conformist and less dynamic in character than Americans. Furthermore, Canada, Sweden and Switzerland have cold climates, which make their people dependent on the population centers, thereby facilitating conformism.

Australia's population is herded to the coasts by an uninhabitable desert, and more heavily populated Japan and Britain are relatively small islands where law and police states may thrive.

YOUR GUIDE TO THE CARMEL PINE CONE

1 Where is The Carmel Pine Cone?

Our office is located on the southwest corner of San Carlos Street and Fourth Avenue. Though there is no sign on the outside of the white adobe building, The Pine Cone is located in Suite #6 inside the courtyard opposite the fountain.

2 Do you publish more than one paper?

In addition to The Carmel Pine Cone, we publish The Monterey Peninsula Visitors Review. While The Pine Cone covers the news of Carmel, Carmel Valley, Pebble Beach and Big Sur – and important regional stories affecting Monterey County – the Review is a tourist-oriented publication that covers the Monterey Bay area. The Pine Cone formerly published the Pacific Grove Monarch and the Fort Ord Panorama, but both have ceased operations.

3 How can I place an ad in The Pine Cone?

Classified Ad / Service Directory / Legal Advertising: Call The Pine Cone offices at (408) 624-0162 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday to place your low-cost classified, service or legal notice for publication. A 'passing' fancy: QBs return to lead CHS, RLS

Padres' Geisler — strong work ethic paying off

By GARTH MERRILL

CARMEL HIGH School quarterback John Geisler can still learn a thing or two about football. And that's just the way his coach likes it.

"Sometimes guys that are that talented don't want to be coached. John is constantly trying to improve," said Padre head coach Craig Johnston. "He's very coachable."

At age 16, he's also very young, by varsity quarterback standards. The 6-2, 180-pound junior is back for his second season as pilot for the Padres. As a sophomore last season, he led the team to a 4-6 record after getting the call to move up from the frosh-soph squad at the beginning of the year.

"It was exciting. Coach worked me a lot — films every day," Geisler said.

The work paid off as he earned second team All-League and All-County honors. This season, coach and quarterback have their eyes on the playoffs.

"We're looking to him for some big things this year," Johnston said.

Came to Carmel in 1981

A native of Belgium, Geisler moved with his family from Brussels to Carmel in 1981. His father heads Formsnet, a business-form distribution company in Seaside. His mother is a registered nurse at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. Both speak French at home, and expect the same of their children.

"We all speak French at home. My brother, sister and I all speak English, but at the dinner table we speak French. And when we talk to our parents, it's in French," Geisler said.

Enthusiasm for football is mixed in the Geisler house. "I have really good support from my father and my brother. My mom doesn't like me playing football." Geisler said she will come to his games "for about five minutes. Then she decides to leave because she can't handle it."

Conditioning is rarely a problem for Geisler, although he works hard at it. He also plays basketball and runs track for CHS. "I'm never really out of shape," he said.

Besides a summer weight program, Geisler said regular practice keeps his arm in shape. "I get a few guys and we throw almost every day, just to keep up." Mountain biking, hiking and water skiing also keep him fit in the off-season.

"He's just a very good athlete," Johnston said. "Plus, he can run."

Last season Geisler rushed for more than 200 yards.

TOM ORRADRE hopes to make RLS a winner.

Pirates' Orradre — small in size, big in talent

By GARTH MERRILL

TO GET the job done as starting quarterback at Robert Louis Stevenson School, Tom Orradre has had to fight something other than 200-pound linemen trying to take off his head: He's had to fight his size.

This is Orradre's second year at the Pirate helm. At just 5-8 and 155 pounds, the 17-year-old senior is used to dealing with the issue.

"I manage somehow," Orradre said. "That's one of the things that's always kept me back — I thought I was too short. But then last year I was able to prove myself. I sort of feel like I'm coming into my own now."

RLS head coach Jeff Young agrees. "He's smart, sharp, everything you could want to lead a group," Young said.

And he is tough. Last season, Orradre was All-League selection — as a defensive back.

King City roots

Orradre hails from San Ardo, south of King City. His family has raised cattle there since the 1850s, when his great grandfather settled in the area from Spain. One of his four brothers runs the ranch. Another wrestled steers professionally. Tom works there in the summer, and does a little team roping in rodeo competitions on the side. Working the family ranch is sort of a family tradition.

So is football. His four brothers all played the game for King City High School. Two of them were All-League defensive backs. "So it kind of was a tradition for the Orradres to go to King City and play football," Tom noted.

Orradre said he wound up at RLS because his mother detected the quality of education was slipping at King City High.

For Orradre, the move — both socially and athletically — "was quite a change of pace. I was used to King City always going to the playoffs. Then I came to RLS, and they didn't win."

When he arrived at RLS, he played quarterback on the frosh-soph team, but his defensive ability drew more attention from the coaches.

"I was probably one of the strongest arms on the team. I could throw the ball, but coaches kept me back because of my height. Then, in the last two games (of last season) they let me have a shot."

Coach Young had his reservations.

"I was a little nervous," Young admitted. "I knew that his height wasn't ideal for quarterback."

But after seeing him throw, Young said Orradre erased "whatever doubts I had. Now, when he goes up against 240-pound guys I don't even think about it."

One of Orradre's strengths is his ability to read

Football team opens Friday night

AFTER AN inconsistent season last year, Carmel High's heroes of the gridiron are going into this year's campaign with some experience under their belts.

Junior quarterback John Geisler (see feature above) will be much improved in his second season directing the Padres, while head coach Craig Johnston has worked out many of the kinks in the hurry-up/run-and-shoot offense he instituted last year.

The Padres will face their first test of the season Friday, Sept. 3 when they scrimmage at Seaside High against the Spartans. When these two teams met last year, they played to a draw, with each team scoring three touchdowns. This year, Seaside has a young but talented team; 10 of their 35 players are sophomores.

The format of a scrimmage is different from real games in that the teams alternate getting the ball on offense, running about 15 plays and then switching.

The game will be played at Seaside High, with the junior varsity playing at 5 p.m., and the varsity game beginning at 7

Starters on offense for the Padres this season include junior captain Geisler at quarterback; junior Brent Carlson at running back; seniors Finn Horsely and Larry Brooks at wide receiver; and juniors Dustin Nagai and Ben Thompson at split-end.

Seniors Jono Spaulding and Robby Schaffer give added depth at receiver. Schaffer also serves as the team's the backup quarterback. Juniors Matt Cramer and John Martine will fill in at running back and end, respectively.

The offensive line includes seniors Dan Silver, Pete Jepson, Jamie Casaboom, Brandon Taylor and Chris Bleich. Senior Matt Sortwell and juniors Xipe Brooks, Lucas Benek and Darren DeMayo will come in off the bench, according to Johnston.

With a small team, many players will go both ways, so it comes as no surprise that Jepson and Casaboom will be starting on the defensive line along with Bleich and senior Shadd Madson. Silver and Brooks will back them up, along with senior Cameron Barnes.

Johnston said his starting linebackers this year include DeMayo and Taylor from the offensive line, along with senior Matt Goldman, and juniors Matt Cramer, Javier Silva and Jed Johnson.

The defensive backfield is made up of Nagai, Shaffer and Brooks, with Thompson and junior Brandon Glanville in reserve. Spaulding will do the place-kicking chores, and Ben Thompson is the punter. Improving on their 4-6 record of a year ago is the No. 1 priority this year for the Padres, Johnston said.

CARMEL HIGH PADRES
1993 Football Schedule

Sept. 3	at Seaside (scrimmage)	7 p.m.
Sept. 11	at Harbor	2 p.m.
Sept. 18	Santa Cruz	2 p.m.
Sept. 25	at Monte Vista Christian	2 p.m.
Oct. 2	St. Ignatius	2 p.m.
Oct. 9	Palma	2 p.m.
Oct. 15	at King City	7:30 p.m.
Oct. 22	at Alisal	7:30 p.m.
Oct. 30	RLS	2 p.m.
Nov. 6	Gonzales	2 p.m.
Nov. 12	at Pacific Grove	7:30 p.m.

(Note: Times listed denote kickoff of varsity games.)

The hope is that experience and talent will make up for a lack of depth. With a squad of only 27, many of whom are in various stages of recovering from injury, the road for the Padres, which begins in earnest on Saturday, Sept. 11 at Harbor High, won't be an easy one.

• Water Polo

The Padre water polo team will try to continue its winning tradition this year, but will have to overcome the loss of several key players from last year's team.

Seniors Micah Lande and Brian Duarte along with the strong junior nucleus of Kyle Nichols, Mike Allaire, Steve Bonanfant and Aaron Gaily will fill the void left by the graduation of the 11 seniors who played on last year's team.

The water polo team is coached by Ed Sigourney.

• Girls' Tennis

Eight returning varsity players, including MVP Chris Handel and most improved player Jessica Kattan will lead the charge of this year's Padre tennis players.

Coming off a third-place finish last year, the Padres will look to continue the building process that began last season.

"We should be better than last year just because of maturity," said coach Dave Chaney.

The Padres will have to contend with perennial powerhouse Robert Louis Stevenson, but should be a force in the tough Mission Trail Athletic League.

• Cross-Country

Defending Central Coast Section champion Danielle Wall leads the Padre runners onto the trail this year.

Seniors Andy Cook, Jason Kistenmacher and Jennifer Eyerman, as well as juniors Bart Rowley and Adele Woytak, anchor the remainder of the team. The word "team" has been an important one so far in the first few days of practice.

"Our mottos this year are team, fun, and, 'only the strong will survive,'" said Coach John Ables who will be assisted by Tom Clifford.

The runners will continue practicing until their opening meet on Sept. 27.

• Girls' Swimming

This year's team continues the amazing winning tradition of the school's girl swimmers.

The Padres are perennial league champions and last season was no different. From the team that pulled the title out at the league finals, 28 members have returned, most notably senior captains Lauren Johnson and Amy Sullivan.

Bob Walthour, Mike Lewis, and Diane Whiteside will coach the Padres this season. The goal for this year's team is clearly defined.

"We hope to repeat as league champions," said Lewis.

With such a large and experienced team, the Padres should make these pre-season goals into post-season realities.

• Girls' Volleyball

First-year varsity coach Diane Kelly will take the helm of this year's Padres' volleyball team.

SENIOR BRIDGET Bohnen paces the Carmel High girls' volleyball team this season.

She will have the pleasure of coaching a talented lineup, lead by seniors Bridget Bohnen and Robin Retherford. Standout Erin Murray will also help the cause.

The team will waste no time getting the season started, opening up Thursday, Sept. 2 at the CHS gym.

(Editor's Note: Columnists James Genone and Dan Silver will divide duties during the fall prep sports season. James will cover the football team, while Dan — a member of the football team — will author articles on all other Padre sports teams. Both James and Dan are seniors at Carmel High School. Next week, The Pine Cone introduces its first-ever sports column devoted exclusively to Robert Louis Stevenson.)

Geisler guides Padres

As a member of the CHS squad that won the Mission Trail Athletic League 4 x 100-meter relay at the league championships, he has speed. But it's not like he runs because he can't put the ball in the air. Last season, he completed 109 of 199 passes.

And he plans on playing even better this season. "This year it's easier to see the defense. I'm reading (coverage) a little bit better. You get your reads pretty much through experience," Geisler said.

He has also worked on his ability to stand in the pocket. "I have patience, like if something needs to develop, I'll wait."

Geisler's commitment to improvement is contagious. Johnston said his attitude toward excellence is felt by everybody on the field.

"It all goes back to the fact that he's a very hard worker," Johnston said. "He leads... and he does it by example."

Orradre paces Pirates

defenses, an understanding he attributes to his time on the other side of the ball.

"As a defensive back," Orradre said, "you find out a lot about how quarterbacks see. You follow their eyes... defensive backs key off that."

In fact, it's his time on the defensive side that Orradre relishes most. "I just love defense. That's just it for me. I like quarterback, but I love just getting in there and hittin' guys, getting hit — it doesn't matter as long as it's some kind of contact."

His defensive talents have even caught the eyes of some college scouts. He said a few Division III schools have expressed interest, including Georgetown and UC Davis. "Whoever wants me, I'll go."

Orradre hopes he can motivate his squad to improve on last season's 3-7 record. "I really have a good feeling about this team," he said. "There's a nucleus of us that have been here since our freshman year. We've all been good friends. And coach has always told us, 'Wait until you guys are seniors and you'll have a big year.'

"So this is our year. We're just so pumped because it's finally our chance. This is our team, and we can take it where we want it."

Carmel Shake-speare Fest to bring in Hamlet, Richard III

Stephen Moorer as Hamlet.

Mark Shilstone-Laurent as Richard III.

By JOHN DETRO

HE SHAN'T play Hamlet as the boy next door.

That word comes from GroveMont founder Stephen Moorer. And a timely word it is, since the troupe stands ready to open the 1993 Carmel Shake-speare Festival at Forest Theater (outdoors).

Running in repertory will be the great drama about Denmark's moody prince and Richard III with Mark Shilstone-Laurent rendering the sly monarch.

Directors: Brian Donoghue, longtime theater pro and Sunset Center's overseer, for Hamlet — and Jeffrey T. Heyer guiding the other. A GroveMont regular, Heyer has taken many films to completion.

The fest officially will commence on Thursday, Sept. 2, an open dress rehearsal of Richard III doing the honors.

Then there will be a Sept. 3 preview. Opening night will come on Sept. 4. Play dates: Sept. 5, 11, 12, 16, 17, 25, 26, 30, Oct. 1, 9 and 10.

Hamlet will follow this way: Wednesday, Sept. 8, open dress rehearsal. Preview on Sept. 9 and opening night Sept. 10. Then Sept. 18, 19, 23, 24, Oct. 2, 3, 7 and 8.

All performances will start at 8 p.m. Tickets cost $10 (general), $8 (students, seniors, military), $6 (children 12 and under). Reservations: 655-3200. Group and school discounts: 649-6852.

"I've been working up to this (role) for many years," Moorer says. "I'm not looking at how other actors have done the prince. I'll play him off-center, left of center, psychologically and emotionally."

Does that mean audiences will see a crazed Hamlet?

"I've looked at his culture and how he was raised," Moorer adds. "Denmark at that time was a weird place, and it certainly was a dysfunctional family. You might say that weirdness permeates."

Other members of the rep company: Nina Capriola, Kevin Nolan Caston, Ron Cohen, Heyer, Julie Hughett, Michael Jacobs, John Rousseau, Maryann Schaupp.

"Bring a picnic dinner and a bottle of wine before the show," says general spokesperson Jacobs, "and enjoy the ambiance of early evening at Forest Theater. Concessions also will be available before the shows and at intermissions."

In addition to the main productions, Shake-speare Authorship West will present a free lecture and debate hosted by Moorer in the same setting at 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 10.

This is GroveMont's fourth season of Shake-speare in Carmel. The unit has been mounting shows at Forest Theater for a decade.

SUPERB ACTRESS Rosamond Goodrich will star in an Arthur Kopit drama — Wings — at Carmel's Cherry Foundation through Sept. 26.

Following an 8 p.m. preview on Thursday evening, Sept. 2, the show will be offered at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 2 p.m. Sundays. Nick Zanides directs.

Goodrich plays Emily Stilson, former stunt pilot who suffers a stroke in her 70s. Although she retains memories, her mind is short-circuited and communication a terrible struggle.

When the play opened in New York, critics there called it "a moving and compassionate study in courage" and "the most distinguished work of the season."

Tickets cost $12 (general) and $10 (students, seniors, military). Advance purchases may be made via Monterey County Theater Alliance (655-3200); group reservations: 649-6421.

BACK IN February, film and stage star Karen Black drew cheers with a performance of her one-woman vehicle entitled A View of the Heart.

If you missed her then, she will be back for one weekend only — Friday and Saturday, Sept. 3-4 — at the Terrace Showroom of Carmel's Pine Inn. Information and reservations: 626-9151.

Producer Nick Williams has scheduled two presentations each evening — 7 p.m. ($25) and 9 p.m. ($30). "There will be a reception with Karen Black following the show," he advises.

Robin McKee directs. Multi-instrumentalist Nick will be joined by brilliant pianist Don Haas when they provide music onstage.

Part of the proceeds will help the Children's Music Scholarship Fund and California Horse Adoption and Protection Society.

Rosamond Goodrich appearing in Wings.

Early bohemians of Carmel helped attract painters

By SAM COLBURN

ANY POSTULATION of a Carmel School of Art rests on the work done by artists residing here during the '30s and '40s.

This was a magic terrain, and they came in response to the call of this meeting of land and sea.

There was also the fascinating activity around the taking of sardines. Fishermen in their purse seiners netted thousands of tons a day — until at last there were no more. The canneries used to blow their whistles when the catch was in, and the workers came out of their little houses above the row to cut the fish and pout them in cans.

Attractive bohemians

It was in this romantic milieu that artists loved to work. The bohemians of early Carmel were part of the attraction for them.

Actually, the first gallery of any distinction was in Del Monte Lodge. Among those showing there were Armin Hansen, William Ritschel, Paul Dougherty, Francis McComes, Mary DeNeale Morgan, E. Charlton Fortune and John O'Shea.

The current showing of Hansen's work is at the Arts and Crafts Gardens of Monterey Peninsula Museum (720 Via Mirada).

This is a very large and comprehensive exhibit, and includes works done in New Mexico and Arizona. The life of cowboys and horses was far removed from the taking of sardines, but Armin related with affection to this robust activity.

Pointed eyebrows

I remember him as a hulk of a man who loved to twirl his eyebrows to a point. He had great energy, which shows in his paintings. And he was a romantic who found courage and dignity in the lives of the men who set out in their great purse seiners to capture the silver in the sea.

He was a romantic. You can't help but feel that fact — just by looking at the Art of California brochure. This carries through into his drawings and etchings of cowboys and horses.

PACIFIC GROVE Art Center is presenting a show entitled How the West Was Done. Curated by Joanna Chapman, this exhibit brings together many works by a real range of artists.

Ranch Buildings by S.C. Jaun is a loose and fluid work. Judith Diem is represented by Cannery Row Houses. An untitled oil by Maurice Logan of the Society of Six is a Mexican market scene.

There is Empire Builders by Armin Hansen. Others: Jubilee Gold (oil by Howard Smith), Grove of Trees by Thomas McGlyn, Alson Skinner Clark (soft work in muted color), Portrait of a Cowboy by that well- known artist of the Southwest: Maynard Dixon.

PG Art Center's halls are filled with the work of singular printmaker Barbara Johnson. Captive Breeze is kind of a parody on kite flying. In Arches the warms and cools work very well.

In Dream Sequence one dream fades into another. Equinox looks as if she used real fabric. Passages is very forceful, but not as a portrait.

Barbara Johnson has an amazing range of images.

The tone values are beautifully balanced, the structure geometric rather than organic.

THIS LINOCUT by Barbara Johnson (a self-portrait dated 1992) is part of her current show at Pacific Grove Art Center. Through Sept. 24.

Russian painters form strong presence at local sites

By JOHN DETRO

RUSSIAN PAINTERS have built a strong presence locally — in conjunction with Carmel gallery owners.

Their works glow on two fronts:

• Ludwa Studio (between San Carlos and Mission, Sixth and Fifth) has opened a show which brings back the Hermitage Group of St. Petersburg. The exhibit will stay up through at least Oct. 12 and kicks off a tour including New York, Chicago, the nation's capital, Los Angeles, Denver, San Francisco.

• Kerfoot Gallery in The Barnyard announces "museum-quality pieces by contemporary Russian artists — all of whom have displayed their efforts internationally."

Gregory Ludwa of the first-named venue says the Hermitage Group is a loose association of painters banding together to honor their teacher, the constructivist painter Grigori Dlugach. They often visited the Hermitage Museum while interpreting the masters.

Painters represented in the show are Albert Bakun, Sasha Daniel, Sergie Daniel, Boris Golovachev, Yuri Gusev, Vladimir Obatnin, Mark Yumin. All will take the tour. An eighth member, Vladimir Kagarlitsky, suffered a fatal heart attack on July 13 in Russia.

Ludwa, who hosted this same group in 1992, says the show contains paintings of local scenes along with Russian. Studio hours: 10:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. daily; 6 to 10 p.m. Sunday.

Wide range

Cynthia Kerfoot says her gallery now has work by Igor Koutsenko, Inal Makeev, Valery Sopp, Vitaly Veksler, Isyaslav Kligman and his brother Israel.

"Ranging in style from conservative still-lifes to wildly imaginative Expressionist images," she says, "the paintings offer something for virtually every taste. Available are oils, watercolors, pastels, mixed media, etchings and hand-painted eggs which display landscapes, traditional scenes and religious imagery."

Information: 625-6746.

OIL PAINTINGS by Pacific Grove artist Jie Zhou are displayed in Sunset Center's Marjorie Evans Gallery through Sept. 30.

A public reception for the artist will be held there from 5 until 7 p.m. Friday, Sept. 3. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A NEW venue — Three Spirits Gallery — has opened at 620 Lighthouse in Pacific Grove. It features the original works of Susan Collins (Monterey Peninsula), Susan Platz (Santa Barbara), Marianne Levine (Santa Cruz).

TRAILSIDE AMERICANA Fine Art Galleries of Carmel (Sixth and Lincoln) reminds that the 1993 Watercolor Show will run only through Saturday, Sept. 4.

Featured artists include award-winners and members of such organizations as American Watercolor Society, National Academy of Western Art and Society of Western Artists. Details: 624-5071.

Meanwhile, Ted and Christine Mollring of Trailside Americana announce that Rob Pitzer this week became gallery director for the Carmel location.

He formerly directed the Corpus Christi Art Connection and was business manager at Kent Ullberg Studios.

AN EXHIBIT by Carmel Valley photographer and art teacher Barbara Blevens will open at Santa Catalina School Gallery on Monday, Sept. 6, and continue through Oct. 23.

The show carries this title — Water, Wings and Wonder: Images of a Winter Visit to Italy, 1991-92.

Blevens has been a member of Santa Catalina's art faculty since 1972 and currently teaches applied design. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday; 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

WESTERN ART by Des Matthews is being shown through Sept. 30 at the Vest Pocket Gallery of Forest Hill Manor in Pacific Grove.

Virginia Eggers, 89, started the gallery 12 years ago. She has retired from organizing shows; pursuing the tradition will be Janeen Pratt.

MONTEREY PENINSULA Museum of Art needs volunteers for its Museum on Wheels program, which takes a collection of international folk art to elementary schools in four counties.

Persons who like art, children and travel are asked to call 373-2061 before Sept. 7 to schedule an interview. An orientation and training session will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 21.

Taste Buds

Consuelo's — Fine Mexican cuisine, ambiance

KEN BALES has always been something of a note taker.

Actually, the habit of jotting down and remembering recipes is a bit of a family tradition. When he was growing up in San Diego, the family owned and operated five restaurants.

"Originally, many of our recipes were simply adapted from the kinds of things our friends and neighbors were making," said Bales, owner of Consuelo's, which is located at 361 Lighthouse Avenue in New Monterey.

"When I was a kid, there were a number of dishes my friends' moms were making. That's how it got started."

Bales takes an understandable pride in reporting exactly who from the old neighborhood developed the enchilada sauce he uses today.

Bales' habit of note taking has persisted, as he has collected recipes from various parts of Mexico. He has simply tasted the food of different places and incorporated what he likes.

Add to these concoctions fresh Monterey Bay catches and you have a winning combination. There are also the traditional Mexican dishes: Fajitas, tamales, burritos and, of course, chile rellenos.

"Our menu is eclectic," he said. "We have many different regions of Mexico represented, and we have the old favorites."

Sometimes its obvious where a dish's flavors originate just by the name, as in the case of huachinango ala Veracruzana," which is a fresh red snapper poached in wine sauce, with bell peppers, onions and tomatoes.

Other times it helps to have Bails clue you in — "pescado al ajillo," for example, is a dish from Guadalajara.

Bales reminds the customer to expect many hot and spicy dishes. The food is cooked to order and made from scratch.

This is not fast-food Mexican, but fine dining, he notes playfully.

Located in Greene mansion

When a local thinks of Consuelo's, he or she recalls not just its cuisine, but its ambiance — since the restaurant occupies a 107-year-old building that is surely one of the loveliest structures in New Monterey.

Dining inside the Harry a Greene mansion is a delight. The structure, decorated in Victorian motif, contains hand-carved woodwork and original doorknobs and hinges, as well as other historic details.

— Paul Wolf

Bay Symphony sets free concert for Labor Day

LABOR DAY will be noted by Monterey Bay Symphony during a free concert at the Naval Postgraduate School on Monday, Sept. 6.

This will be the unit's final offering of its Concert on the Lawn series at NPS.

Conductors Jack Bayes and Carl Christensen will lead players through a program entitled, reasonably enough — In Honor of Labor.

The concert will begin at 2 p.m. with the public invited to a 10:30 a.m. rehearsal. Concert goers are invited to bring picnic lunches, lawn chairs and blankets.

Musicians will perform Light Cavalry Overture by Von Suppe, Kanon by Pachelbel, Tchaikovsky's March Slav and Scott Joplin's Mapleleaf Rag along with other pieces.

NPS invites guests to participate in guided and self-guided tours of the old Hotel Del Monte, tower room, historical museum and the newly-renovated cactus garden.

RESERVATIONS ARE being taken now for An Evening with the Romanoffs. Call 624-8511.

Russia's former royal family is cited in the special event planned by Monterey County Symphony Association and Guild. It will be held from 5 to 9 p.m. at Quail Meadows on Sunday, Sept. 12.

The announcement says artists, designers and landscapers will be selling decorator items: Susan Britton, Jan Gardner, Janice Gistinelli, Franco Goss, Molly Hedges, Cynthia Kerfoot, Paula Moezzi, Rodwell Antiques, Jane Peters, Rudy Reate, Diane Swift, Linda Thornton, Linda Williams.

Organizers promise a "memorable evening of Russian food, wine, music and dancing in a Beryoska marketplace." Those attending will have the chance to win a $10,000 cruise to Scandinavia and Russia aboard the five star liner Crystal Harmony.

Meanwhile, Monterey County Symphony has elected new officers for the 1993-94 season.

They are: Sherrie McCullough (president); Betty Bryant, Suanne Lehr, Thomas Ruth (vice-presidents); Richard Borda (treasurer); Carol Lee Owens (sescretary).

Board members elected for three-year terms: Paul Bianchi, Betty Bryant, Mary M. Hedges, Walter McCarthy, Richard Merrill, Carol Lee Owens, Susan Freeland Schley, Ernest Simard, R. Paul Toeppen, F. Mitchell Wright.

Hospice Golf Scramble again will raise funds for patient care

GOLFERS WILL play in groups of five. And entries close on Friday, Sept. 3.

That's the word from the 11th annual Hospice Golf Scramble on Tuesday, Sept. 7, at Carmel Valley Ranch Resort. Proceeds will benefit Hospice of the Central Coast patient care programs.

Entry cost: $275. This covers lunch, green fees, golf cart, buffet dinner and refreshments.

Hospice spokespersons Ann Tipton and Jennifer Joseph note that players will have the chance to win a Hawaiian vacation with round-trip air fare. They say the prize for a hole-in-one is a Lexus GS300.

"With golfers attending from throughout California," Ann says, "the event nets about $80,000 for the care and support of patients and their families."

For more details or to make reservations, call 372-6565.

LABOR DAY Weekend will bring the seventh annual Greek Festival at Monterey Custom House Plaza. Dates are Saturday through Monday — Sept. 4-5-6.

Fest co-chairs Patty Mantas and John Scourkes declare: "It will bring forth live Greek music, authentic costumed dance performances, Greek cuisine and, if the Greek Spirit moves you, lessons in the traditional dances."

Admission is free. Hours are 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday.

On Saturday evening, there will be a lamb dinner "under the stars" plus entertainment ($20 per plate). Artisans will display traditional crafts throughout the celebration.

Dance groups include the Greek Village Dancers of the Monterey Peninsula, Dionysos Dancers of Oakland, Hellenic Traditional Arts Institute of Santa Clara, Greek Officers and Wives of the Naval Postgraduate School.

The overall sponsor is St. John the Baptist Greek Orthodox Church in Salinas. Information: 1-424-4434.

THE GREENFIELD Broccoli Festival will be held Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 4-5, at Oak Park over there.

Presenting this 10th annual edition are festival movers and shakers, Greenfield Lioness Club, Greenfield Rotary and Soledad Lions Club.

Admissions are $5 (general), $2 (seniors and children six to 12), free for youngsters under five when they're with adults. Proceeds will benefit non-profit community organizations.

The celebration will begin with a parade at 9 a.m. Saturday. The First Annual Tour de Broccoli Bike Race also will happen Saturday, starting between 8 and 9 a.m.

On Sunday, the 10th Annual Broccoli Trot 10K Run and 4K Walk is scheduled to start at 8:30 a.m. Information on this event and all other elements: 1-674-5240 or 1-476-0222.

Spokespersons say the 1993 theme is North of the Border — and "there will be continuous free entertainment on the Main Stage as well as children's entertainment on the Family Stage."

Broccoli will appear in countless creative dishes — pizza, muffins, soup, sausage, on and on. There will be more than 30 arts and crafts booths.

Main Stage bands include The Real Millionaires (rock), Eight-Second Ride (country rock) and The Fabulous

KAZU will carry opera broadcast

(Editor's note: The extraordinary opera opening discussed below will come to local listeners over KAZU Public Radio at 8 p.m. Monday, Sept. 27, with familiar voice Barbara Smythe hosting from the Pacific Grove studios. So we thought our readers would enjoy the background article by Herbert Kupferberg. He is a New York editor and author of books on music.)

By HERBERT KUPFERBERG

THE YEAR1968 will surely go down in American history as one of the most tumultuous of modern times.

It saw the assassinations of Robert F. Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr., the escalations of the Vietnam War, the riots at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago and the first election to the Presidency of Richard Nixon.

Yet music lovers, who have memories of their own, will always recall it as a happy and harmonious year if only for one development — the debuts, within two months of each other, of tenors Placido Domingo and Luciano Pavarotti at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Celebration

That occurrence is being celebrated on Sept. 27 with one of the most unusual opening nights in Metropolitan Opera history — a celebration of the 25th anniversaries at the Met of the two singers who, more than any others, inaugurated the Age of Tenors in which we still live.

A measure of the evening's significance is that, for the first time since the inaugural performance of Samuel Barber's Antony and Cleopatra at the new Met at Lincoln Center in 1966, an opening night performance is being broadcast live by the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera international Radio Network.

Both Pavarotti and Domingo have performed in opera and concert all over the world in the last quarter century. Yet their careers — at least to Americans — seem inextricably bound up with the Metropolitan Opera. At this house alone, Domingo has sung more than 350 performances and Pavarotti nearly 250.

Their roles have encompassed most of the standard Italian operas, but they also have included such unexpected pleasures as Pavarotti's assumption of the title part of Mozart's Idomeneo and Domingo's excursions into Wagner's Lohengrin and Parsifal.

Although each has developed his own "specialty" roles — for example, Domingo in Otello and Pavarotti in L'Elisir d'Amore — the two tenors have shared and shone in much of the same repertory. Among the roles undertaken by both are Alfredo in La Traviata, Manrico in Il Trovatore, the Duke of Mantua in Rigoletto, Riccardo in Un Ballo in Maschera, Radames in Aida, Rodolfo in La Boheme, Cavaradossi in Tosca and other staples of the Italian repertory.

Different backgrounds

Although their careers have in some ways followed parallel courses, the two singers come from different backgrounds.

Pavarotti, now 57, is Italian to the core. He was born in Modena, studied there, sang in a chorus there, and in 1961 won the prestigious Concorso Internazionale, which launched him on his career.

By the end of that year he already was singing at opera houses outside of Italy and in 1965 made his U.S. debut in Lucia di Lammermoor in Miami opposite Joan Sutherland, with whom he enjoyed a long-lasting partnership.

It was during a performance with Sutherland that he made one of his most memorable virtuoso appearances at the Met in Donizetti's La Fille du Regiment, with its flying succession of high C's.

Domingo, five years younger than Pavarotti, took a more circuitous route to his mastery of Italian Opera. He was born in Spain and spent his childhood and musically formative years in Mexico. His first regular operatic base was the Israel National Opera in Tel-Aviv, where he sang for two and a half years.

He first attracted wide notice with the New York City Opera in 1966 in a contemporary opera, Alberto Ginastera's Don Rodrigo. Obviously, versatility is among his foremost qualities, and at the Met he has starred in French and German as well as Italian repertory ranging from Carmen to Tosca.

Regulars

Both Domingo and Pavarotti have become regulars — not only to the Met's in-house audiences but to millions who have heard them on the Texaco-sponsored radio broadcasts, and in their many televised appearances from the Metropolitan Opera.

Inevitably, each has his fans and followers. But unlike sports and politics, where there must be winners and losers, in music every great performer holds his or her own place — unique and distinctive.

And when a Domingo and a Pavarotti, whether separately or together, bring the art of opera to its fulfillment, what need is there to express a preference?

As this season's opening night attests, in the last quarter century the musical world has come to cherish them both.

Jazz Tides

By John Detro

Fruits of our labors

LABOR DAY usually calls out celebrative crowds. So why should this year be any different?

Your free time can include — on the holiday itself — the Carmel Valley Gospel Festival '93 at CV Community Center. (And the vibrant linkage between church music and jazz is too obvious for comments here.)

Scheduled from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday, Sept. 6, the admirable event is a freebie. Center address: 25 Ford Rd.

The talent lineup includes inspirational Deola Booker ("queen of gospel"), Gene Short and Company, Homefire, Bard Sherman, Better Days and Tri-Unity. The stylistic spread covers traditional and contemporary treatments.

Barbara Sherman will take calls at 625-3492 if you wish more information before heading out there.

Ocean Aire

Producer Dave Svec announces quite a gang of performers at the Ocean Aire Amphitheater of Laguna Seca Recreational Area. His Labor Days bash has been scheduled Friday through Sunday — Sept. 3-4-5.

Specific times: noon to 10 p.m. at the main venue Saturday and Sunday. At Club Laguna — 7 to 10 p.m. Friday and 10:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Saturday and Sunday nights.

Dave says the festival's confirmed acts are Cardiff Reefers, Deep Blue Sea, Alisa Fineman, Mumbo Gumbo, Nectar of the Gods, Pele Juju, Radiators, Al Rapone and the Zydeco Express, Tempest, Monte Warden, Word of Mouth, Zero.

Ticket information and the ducats themselves may be obtained via the Ticketmaster system. For campgrounds reservations and charges, contact Monterey County Parks at 755-4977..

"Folks should bring both warm and cool clothing since local temperatures can vary greatly at this time of year," Svec suggests. "Ocean Aire Amphitheater is an intimate venue next to the Media Center — not to be confused with the large bowl where rock concerts happen."

One more point: "No ice chests, alcohol, drugs, cans, bottles, high back chairs, cameras or pets are allowed within the amphitheater. And no vending without permits."

Kuumbwa offering

The 18th Birthday Party of Kuumbwa Jazz Center in Santa Cruz will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 5, at that city's San Lorenzo Park. The public's invited and there's no admission charge.

Signed for the occasion: Robin Anderson Big Band, Brazilian vocalist Claudia Villela, trio fronted by pianist Steve Czarnecki.

Upcoming at Kuumbwa — Strunz and Farrah (Sept. 9), Stanley Turrentine (Sept. 13), Charles Lloyd (Sept.

Deola Booker: Carmel Valley gospel show.

Jazz Tides: Huge concert scheduled at Market Place

20), John Patitucci (Sept. 27), George Coleman Quartet (Oct. 4).

Northward

Meanwhile, Z and Z Entertainment of San Jose promises a 16-hour outdoor concert which starts at 2 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 4, and runs until 6 the next morning. The site of Massive Culture '93: West Coast Market Place.

Costs are $20 advance (through Ticketmaster) and $25 (fest day). The producers say they've signed 21 live bands — jazz, hip hop, alternative rock, reggae, dance music. And 30 "top deejays from Los Angeles to Seattle will be spinning non-stop House, Acid Jazz, Breakbeat and Trance at three separate dance tents."

And: "Other playful attractions include a skate park, smart drink bar, arcade, body painting, lasers, virtual reality playground, projection screens, circus performers and carnival rides."

Sounds to me like a rich education or potential disaster — nothing in between. "Amenable Security and a first aid tent will be on hand," Z and Z informs. "Stringent searches will be carried out."

Heritage

If a longer trip feels attractive, the Oakland Heritage Festival Weekend will feature an African Dance Celebration (Sept. 4), Latin American Music Festival (Sept. 5) and Blues Festival (Sept. 6). Place: Estuary Park near Jack London Village. For ticketing details and reservations, contact the Blues Society at (510) 836-2227.

Blues bookings: Bobby Blue Bland, Charles Brown, Guitar Shorty, Kansas City vocalist Linda Shell, Blues Society Caravan of All-Stars. "Regional styles will be represented."

Short takes

• The newish Villa Pompeii Italian restaurant in Carmel Rancho Center will feature local jazz pianists and groups on Friday and Saturday nights. So says Frank Lane, who also has Planet Gemini on Cannery Row with his brother Anthony. Solo pianists will work from 7 to 9 p.m. with bands taking over from 9 until midnight.

"The amount of talent around here is incredible," Frank comments. "That fact leaves us no choice but to book these people. There are enough of them to keep going for a couple of years."

• Monterey Bay Hot Jazz Society will present Ted Shafer's Jelly Roll Jazz Band from 1:30 to 5:00 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 12, at Monterey Moose Lodge. Admission: $6 (non-members) and $4 (members). All trad musicians are invited to sit in on the jam sets.

"They're from the San Francisco Bay Area," says MBHJS spokesperson Lynn Palomino. "If people like the stylings of Jelly Roll Morton, they'll love the music of Ted's gang."

• Seaside Art Commission and Community Services Department invite you to a reception from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 3. It will open the annual exhibit called Visual Arts' Salute to Jazz. Live music, refreshments — and then the show will stay up through Sept. 30.

• Doc Ricketts' Lab near Cannery Row will have Terrance Simien's Zydeco Band on Wednesday night, Sept. 8. Cover of $8 per. Call 649-4241.

• KUSP Public Radio (88.9FM) says it again will carry the Monterey Jazz Festival (Sept. 17-18-19). That would be on a feed from KJAZ Radio, which holds an exclusive contract to broadcast MJF.

At 9 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 5, the station will air a special radio documentary about Charles Mingus.

'Father Hood' is enjoyable, forgetable summertime fare

By PAUL WOLF

PATRICK SWAYZE is an ex-con who gets another chance in the adventure-comedy Father Hood.

FATHER HOOD is a sweet-natured summertime movie that draws freely from familiar Hollywood film genres — the road adventure flick, family comedy and tough guy-learns-life-lesson drama.

It would be easy to fall into cynicism about predictable plots and hackneyed outcomes; One should always bear in mind that the industry is a calculating animal, and nearly everything viewed at the movie house is based on some kind of formula. Why should this be an exception?

The question is never how original is the premise, but what is made of it. Father Hood is buffeted by strong, convincing performances and a good sense of pacing, but it never is quite funny, exciting or moving enough to qualify as a find film.

Like a summertime walk in the park, this one is quite pleasant, but nothing to write home about.

Superstar Swayze

Patrick Swayze is one of Hollywood's true superstars, and this is clearly his star vehicle. The role of Jack Charles, however, is never enough of a stretch for Swayze to raise his career to new heights.

Jack may be an ex-con, but he exudes abundant charm nonethe less. On the face of it, he is selfish lout who shows few outward signs that reform is possible.

The film begins with Jack encountering his two children who have been penned up in a foster care system that is frighteningly like his own experiences with jail. The three escape the law and take to the road — beginning their adventure in Los Angeles and setting New Orleans as their destination.

It is in that city where Jack intends to pull off the biggest heist of his career, against the muted opposition of his offspring. All the while he will resist developing any feelings for his fellow travelers, even though they grow warm to him.

Father Hood pulls all the obligatory stops, and in ever-changing locations: There is a highway chase in the Mojave Desert, a narrow escape at the Hoover Dam, and, finally, hot pursuit on the bayous.

A young woman reporter, played by Halle Berry, enters the action at just the right moment. She will become the main reason the fleeing family's fortunes turn around.

Here we have the makings of an entertaining family film. The two children, played well by Sabrina Lloyd and Brian Bonsall, are so sweet and likable there would seem no way the filmmaker was about to let Jack be a murderous type.

Yet there are consequences to that. By softening the Jack Charles' persona, the drama itself loses its hard edge, since Jack is never truly menancing. We see he is not all bad — "I rob drug dealers," he explains. He knows a lot about guns, but he never kills anyone. For this particular dad, being a con is as much about attitude as anything else — making sure those shades and sideburns look right.

The '50s and '60s music keep this picture playful and fast-moving. But with such a light touch to the drama, there should have been more funny scenarios, great lines and surprises. That may hint more at a deficiency in the screenplay by Scott Spencer than problems with the direction of Darrell James Roodt.

So we are left with some much boring dialogue: "How many times have I told you not to call me dad?..." Jack's unwillingness to communicate: "Hey, what are you trying to do? Make conversation or something?"

It gets a bit predictable when Jack steals his fourth car in his fourth state. Even formula pictures need fresh ideas, and Father Hood could have used a few more.

Despite all this, Swayze is moving in the final scene. Jack's transformation is convincing because we have seen a bond develop between him and his children by living with them in close quarters for nearly two hours.

Starring: Patrick Swayze. Halle Berry. Sabrina Lloyd. Brian Bonsall
Director: Darrell James Roodt
Rating: ★★ 1/2

Youthful talent

Lloyd and Bonsall are good young actors. In fact, their performances tend to be more inspired than the lines they must deliver.

Mixing comedy, drama and action is no easy feat. Perhaps the more films like Father Hood one has seen, the higher one's standards become.

Every summer there is a great batch of films like Father Hood. We see them, enjoy them and quickly forget them.

THE REVIEW

CARMEL ART Association announces a show of paintings by Gerald Wasserman. Included will be scenes from Italian coffee bars. The exhibit opens Thursday, Sept. 2, and will run through Oct. 6. The gallery is on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth. Information: 624-6176.

HERE'S JUST one image from Fish Tank Sonata by photographer Arthur Tress. The exhibit is being offered by the Center for Photographic Art in the Sunset Complex through Sept. 24. Center Director Dennis High describes the show as "a surreal allegory in which a fisherman learns about life and environmental responsibility from a talking red snapper."

Youth to be honored at Native American event

MONTEREY BAY American Indian Council announces that the Fourth Annual Honoring of the Youth educational gathering will take place Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 18-19, at Monterey Custom House Plaza.

The event will include traditional Native American drums, singers, dancers, foods, arts, crafts. Information: 375-0095.

This celebration will be held in conjunction with the Festival de Pueblo de Monterrey.

Book Bag: Earful offered

By MARY RODRIGUEZ

RANDOM HOUSE Audio Publishing now offers "paperback" Price-Less editions of best-selling fiction and non-fiction audio books.

They are the same three-hour abridgements of two cassettes with performances by well-known actors and actresses — and the same high quality productions with background music — as Random House original audio books. The only difference is in the packaging (minimal but sufficient) and the price: $8.99.

Recent Price-Less releases include—

An Inconvenient Woman by Dominick Dunne. Spicy tale of intrigue, passion and murder against a background of high living in the best circles and underworld of Hollywood. Read by Robert Morse, who uses all the right nuances to make sure you don't miss a single innuendo.

Murder at the Pentagon by Margaret Truman. This is a far cry from Truman's usual sleek, sophisticated mysteries, and new types of characters are introduced.

Maj. Margaret Falk (USAF) is a beautiful octoroon with blue eyes inherited from her German mother. A former helicopter pilot, she is now a Pentagon lawyer assigned to defend a homosexual accused of murdering a high-level weapons expert, rumored to be a homosexual too.

Maj. Falk believes her client has been framed, but in trying to prove this she becomes involved in a web of high treason and treachery that nearly costs her career and life. Reader Patricia Clarkson, Broadway and TV actress, knows how to get the most tension out of suspense.

New offerings of regular audio books include The Empty House by Rosamunde Pilcher, an abridgement read by Lynn Redgrave. Bantam Doubleday Dell Audio Publishing, New York. Two cassettes. Three-hour listening time. $15.99.

No one writes a tender love story with the same skill and warmth as Pilcher, author of the best-selling The Shell Seekers.

Recently widowed Virginia returns to Cornwall from her recent home in Scotland hoping to revive lost feelings for Eustace, a handsome farmer with whom she had fallen in love 10 years before.

First, however, she must get her two children back from a domineering mother-in-law and a treacherous nanny in London.

THE NEXT event at Thunderbird For Kids in The Barnyard will spotlight Bethie (Beth Marlin Lichter) at 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 25.

Word is: "She will bring her new music to dedicated young fans. The first release in her new Really Silly Series is Bethie's Really Silly Songs About Animals — a whimsical collection sure to spark the imaginations of little listeners."

CARMEL WRITER Lequita Vance-Watkins has been awarded a 1993 Artists Fellowship for Poetry from the California Arts Council (CAC), it was announced this week.

The fellowship carries a grant of $2,500 and is decided on the basis of past literary work and awards over a period of time.

Poetry by Vance-Watkins has won numerous awards. This year she was a winner in the International Tanka Competition judged by Jane Hirschfield.

As co-author of Paperweight — a poetry book for children — she has worked in many schools in the San Jose, Saratoga and Carmel areas. "I feel a deep commitment to poetry for children and plan to continue the schools programs."

Right now she is working as coordinator for a San Francisco event — the 1993 National Reading scheduled to take place across the nation on Oct. 5. Proceeds will benefit the hungry, homeless and illiterate.

LEQUITA VANCE-WATKINS

A volunteer for Carmel Music Society and Tor House Foundation, Vance-Watkins says: "I feel it is important to contribute to one's community — to give back some of the same kinds of blessings received from it."

CAC literature awards are presented every four years with awards in intervening years going to visual arts, performing arts, media arts and "new genres."

THE NATIONAL Library of Poetry says $12,000 in prizes will be awarded this year to more than 250 poets in the North America Open Poetry Contest.

Deadline: Sept. 30. The competition is open to everyone, but "seniors are particularly welcome," according to Contest Director Howard Ely. "And entry is free."

He adds: "Many of our previous winners have come from the ranks of senior citizens. Maybe it's because they have experienced the many things in life which provide the 'raw material' for artistic creation."

To enter, send one original poem (any subject and style) to National Library of Poetry, PO Box 704-ZI, Owings Mills, Maryland 21117.

The poem should be no more than 20 lines. The poet's name and address must appear on the top of the page.

A new contest will open Oct. 1, Ely says.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE UNDER DEED OF TRUST
T.S. No. 20550
Loan No. 388566-2PS
Other Ref. –

A.P. Number: 10-274-008

YOU ARE IN DEFAULT UNDER A DEED OF TRUST DATED October 5, 1990. UNLESS YOU TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, IT MAY BE SOLD AT A PUBLIC SALE. IF YOU NEED AN EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF THE PROCEEDING AGAINST YOU, YOU SHOULD CONTACT A LAWYER.

Notice is hereby given that Coast Fed Services, a California Corporation, as trustee, or successor trustee, or substituted trustee pursuant to the Deed of Trust executed by Gregory B Ryan and Pernina P Ryan, husband and wife Recorded 10/15/1990 in Book 2585 Page 1193 Inst. # 60254 of Official Records in the office of the County Recorder of Monterey County, California, and pursuant to the Notice of Default and Election to Sell thereunder recorded 04/13/1993 in Book 2929 Page 1560 Inst # 24521 of said Official Records, will Sell on 09/08/1993 at 10:00 A.M. at the main (South) entrance to the County Courthouse, (facing the courtyard off Church Street, 240 Church Street, Salinas, CA at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash (payable at the time of sale in lawful money of the United States), all right, title, and interest, conveyed to and now held by it under said Deed of Trust in the property situated in said County and State and described as follows: Lots 18 and 20, in Block "R", of Carmel-By-The-Sea, Addition No. 1, in the City of Carmel, County of Monterey, State of California, according to Map filed November 6, 1905, in Volume 1, Page 45 1/2, of Maps of Cities and Towns, in the Office of the County Recorder of said County.

The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 12th Ave & Carmelo St' NE corner, Carmel, CA 93921.

The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein.

The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligation secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of sale is: $505,331.34

In addition to cash, the Trustee will accept a cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank, a check drawn by a state or federal credit union or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, savings association or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the Financial Code and authorized to do business in this state. In the event tender other than cash is accepted, the Trustee may withhold the issuance of the Trustee's Deed until funds become available to the payee or endorsee as a matter of right.

Said sale will be made, but without covenant or warranty, express or implied regarding title, possession or encumbrances, to satisfy the indebtedness secured by said Deed, advances thereunder, with interest as provided therein, and the unpaid principal of the note secured by said deed with interest thereon as provided in said Note, fees, charges and expenses of the trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust.

Leisure Scene: Indian Market seeks to unify native peoples

Cruisetones ('50s nostalgia) on Saturday.

Ranka's Review (musical marionettes) and Peter Dragula ("one-man circus") form only part of the Family Stage roster.

AT MISSION San Juan Bautista, the Ninth Annual California Indian Market will be held Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 4-5.

Spokesperson Sonny Reyna (Comanche-Yaqui): "The major theme there will be reunion of the Eagle and Condor (North American and South American native peoples respectively) to aid the environmental crisis on Mother Earth."

He says the 1993 Indian Market will feature Tawantinsuyo — "a special group of South American Indians bringing prophecies, dance and song to fulfill the (reunion) prophecy of the ancestors."

Representing the Eagle will be the Aztec dance group Xipe Totec and the traditional Kelly Looking Horse Lakota Sioux song/drum troupe.

Also on hand will be American Indian artists, fashions, foods and speakers. Kashia spiritual leader Bernice Torrez will open the fest at 10 a.m. Saturday. Overall fest sponsor: San Juan American Indian Council.

Information: 1-623-2379.

NATIONAL WRITERS Union (Local 7) will present poets William Minor and Robert Sward in a reading at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 8, in Pacific Grove's Portofino Cafe.

Admission to the offering: $3 per person.

A teacher at Monterey Peninsula College, Minor has published five books of poetry. Temple University Press will bring out his latest book — about a jazz journey through the Soviet Union — in springtime 1994.

Sward has authored 14 books of poetry and a novel. He teaches at UC/Santa Cruz and Cabrillo College.

Meanwhile, Seaside Art Commission and Community Services will kick off a Tuesday evening series called Coffee House Poetry and Readings.

Big Sur poet Ric Masten will share his work from 7 until 8:30 p.m. on Sept. 7 in Seaside City Hall Gallery.

HE'S KNOWN far and wide as one of the most innovative acoustic guitarists ever.

The masterful Leo Kottke will appear in concert at 8 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 5, in King Hall of the Naval Postgraduate School.

Ticket information may be obtained from In Town Productions of Carmel (625-5001).

Critics use words like "American original" and "genius" while discussing 25-year concert career and 21 albums.

There's still time to enjoy jellyfish exhibit – but hurry

YOU STILL have time to explore the beauty and mystery of jellyfishes. But hurry.

The Monterey Bay Aquarium's special exhibition — Planet of the Jellies — closes on Tuesday, Sept. 7.

The exhibit features 17 species — many for the first time at any Aquarium. And 10 jelly species are breeding at the aquarium.
